Editorial

By Greg Loescher
CBG* Publisher

As the industry changes, so does Comics Buyer's Guide. Next year is our 25th anniversary year.

It is rare these days to have a publication in print for that long. The failure rate for magazines, in or out of the comics field, is pretty high. We are thankful to the thousands of readers, subscribers, advertisers, professionals, dealers, retailers, and distributors who have supported us over the years. We are looking forward to celebrating this milestone in the history of comics fandom and our history as the weekly newspaper for fans, collectors, and the industry.

Starting with our 25th anniversary issue, issue #1162 (dated Feb. 23, 1996), we will have a slight format change. Beginning with that issue, the page dimension will change. The page will be 11 inches wide by 13 inches high. The Postal Service tells us that the dimensions will help it provide better delivery of our subscriber copies, which is the majority of our circulation.

Over the past several years, we have complied with changing postal requirements. We've gone to barcoding subscriber addresses, supplying shipping dates with the address, and so on. Theoretically, complying with these requirements was supposed to help improve delivery time. While that has not always been the case, our move next year to a different size will allow CBG to be "machineable" on the post office's high-speed sorting machines, which will help speed up delivery.

This format change is a move you will see many tabloid magazines and newspapers make to achieve greater deliverability. We have already made — or will be making — similar format changes with other Krause Publications titles.

The new size will also help retailers who have had problems shelving CBG, which will now stand up better on a shelf or rack.

Some people have asked that we publish CBG in a magazine-sized format. We wanted to have a larger page size to allow dealers and collectors to advertise more comics per page than magazine-sized or comic-book-sized publications. We also wanted to provide such display advertisers as comic-book publishers with a larger image area to promote their titles.

Our editorial staff also wants to use that larger page size for a wider variety of page design possibilities.

Our advertisers will receive more information in the next few months on how this change will affect their advertising space. We'll also provide information on our 25th anniversary issue, the cover of which will be printed on glossy stock. (The only other time in CBG's history that we have printed the cover on glossy stock was in celebration of issue #1000 in 1993.)

Of course, we have more to celebrate in 1996 than our 25th anniversary. We will also be publishing our 1200th issue at the end of October.

We hope 1995 was a great year for you. It was for us — and we plan to have an even better one in 1996.

They must be written — we cannot take these by telephone — and kept brief, preferably in the format used here.*

CIE hires vice president of merchandising and marketing

Gregory Daniel has been appointed Classics International Entertainment (CIE) vice president of merchandising and marketing. According to CIE President and Chief Operating Officer Gary Colabuono, Daniel will develop promotional and marketing strategies and coordinate buying and merchandising for the 12-store Moondog's retail chain as well as comic-book and pop-culture merchandising in CIE departments established with CIE's strategic alliance partner, Trans World Entertainment Corporation.

Recently, the two companies announced the completion of a strategic joint alliance to open as many as 100 new comic book/pop culture departments inside existing Trans World stores in the next year.

Trans World is one of the largest entertainment retailers in the country, operating more than 600 stores under the names of Coconuts, Record Town, Music Town, Tape World, Saturday Matinee, combination stores of Record Town and Saturday Matinee, Movies Plus, and F.Y.E. (For Your Entertainment).

"The opportunity to work with Gary in the creation and development of new retailing ventures with major mass-market retailers, was one I could not afford to pass up," Daniel said. "Both the entertainment and specialty retail fields are undergoing considerable change, and I look forward to the opportunity that CIE offers, as we define the role of comics and pop culture in entertainment retailing."

Before joining CIE, Daniel was vice president and general manager of the St. Louis-based Fantasy Shop Inc. chain. There he developed "An Endless Effort," an AIDS benefit featuring the Neal Pozner Memorial Charity Auction.

He has served on retail advisory boards for DC, Diamond, and Marvel, and is vice president of PACER, the comics industry's largest trade organization.

Multi-Book withdraws from monthly comics distribution

Multi-Book & Periodicals has announced it will withdraw from distributing new, monthly comic-book titles to concentrate on other current product lines and expand into ancillary lines. The decision was made as a result of recent exclusive contracts between major comics publishers and other distributors, the Canada-based company said.

A press release stated, "It is our intention at Multi-Book to expand our existing lines and strive toward building a stronger and more versatile company for our customers, so that they might grow through our product diversification."

Multi-Book said it will continue to operate through its warehouses in Burlington, Ottawa, and Montreal and will open a fourth warehouse in Toronto.

Motown launches comics line with 'The Crush'

Thomas Fassbender, former comic product manager at Capital City Distribution, will oversee a new line of comic books from Motown Records. Fassbender will be an associate editor at new Motown division Motown Animation. Motown Animation will produce the comic books, which will be published by Image Comics beginning in December.

Fassbender's responsibilities will include scheduling and trafficking comic-book deadlines, editing creative material, and coordinating interactions between Motown Animation and Image Comics. At Capital City, Fassbender wrote and edited Advance Comics and Internal Correspondence.

Motown Animation is developing entertainment properties based in two comic-book imprints: Motown Machineworks and Motown Comix. Motown Comix will concentrate on music-based projects featuring such performers as Boyz II Men, Bone Thugs, Harmony, and Coolio. Machineworks will feature a range of comic-book genres, including superhero, adventure, science-fiction, and romance titles. All the Machineworks titles will based in a single, cohesive universe.

Motown said the Machineworks stories would combine fantasy with "a realistic sense of cause and effect, using the real to validate the amazing."

The dual nature of the Machineworks universe is made explicit in the imprint's flagship title, The Crush. The series follows the days and nights of J.C. Pratt, a successful criminal psychiatrist who becomes a violent avenger known as The Crush when the sun goes down.

Pratt's "Dr. Jekyll" side is well-mannered and educated, striving to help his clients come to terms with their personal demons. At night, however, his own psychological demons unleash Pratt's dark side in the form of The Crush. The Crush uses Pratt's knowledge of police and criminal activities to tackle problems that are out of the doctor's reach. His pursuit of evil in the streets is as violent and irrational as Pratt's efforts in the office are calm and methodical. Scheduled to ship Dec. 6, The Crush #1 is written by Mike Baron, pencilled by N. Steven Harris, and inked by Reggie Jones. Future titles will include Casual Heroes, "an alternative look at the superhero genre," and Man against Time, a story told through interconnecting mini-series.

Christie's has comics collectibles auction Nov. 17

The fourth annual Comic Collectibles Sale at Christie's East Nov. 17 will feature Frank Frazetta's Tarzan cover art for The Jewels of Opar and a hand-colored Sunday page from Winsor McCay's In the Land of Wonderful Dreams. The Frazetta art is valued at $70,000 to $90,000, and the McCay strip, considered by some to be the most valuable example of original comic-strip art offered at an auction, is valued at $40,000 to $60,000.

Comic-book art offered at this year's auction includes Frazetta's first Mad cover ($25,000-35,000), a Jack Kirby page from the first appearance of Dr. Doom ($3000), Joe Simon's cover re-creation of Captain America #2 ($10,000-$20,000), a Bill Elder story from Mad #6 ($6000-7000), and Mort Drucker Mad cover art parodying Batman Forever ($5000-7000).

Silver Age comic art will be represented by Carmine Infantino's re-creation of Showcase #13 ($5000-7000) and a collection of Silver Age comic books, including Amazing Fantasy #15, Amazing Spider-Man #1, Showcase #4, Showcase #1, Fantastic Four #1, and the Bethlehem copies of Showcase #22, #23, and #24.

Rob Liefeld returns to 'X-Force'

Marvel's X-Force celebrates its 50th issue in November with two different covers. Former series writer and artist Rob Liefeld's double gatefold cover is shown above. "Bob Harras and I spoke at the San Diego Comic-Con about the possibility of doing a cover for the 50th issue," Liefeld said, " and I jumped at the chance. It's been a long time since I've drawn Cable and company and it was a pleasure to work with Bob once again."

After reading my associate's (he of the four names) comments in CBG #1136, I just had to sit down and reply. I am, of course, referring to Cary William-Shannon Coatney.

Cary doesn't seem to understand that some of the best movies do not have big budgets for promotion, as is the case with the two movies he mentioned. In addition, Hollywood's publicists are masters of creating interest in violence. Why do they succeed? Why, because kids love it.

In any event, I will keep this short by getting to my objection with Cary's letter, which is to say, his general attack on Christians and conservatives. He should send his comments relative to politics and religion to magazines that cater to these subjects.

When I read a trade magazine, I expect to read what's germane to that magazine's subject matter. No one's mind has ever been changed by attacking a person's belief. If you want to change someone's mind, it should be done through the strength and validity of your own argument.

Let it be known that Cary's comments and opinions are strictly his own and do not represent the opinions of Rookies & Allstars. In fact, if he writes under the name of the store, he is to let me see the letter, in view of the fact that he is sarcastic and independent of thought (which is great); however, I don't want to be surprised should he say something that offends someone with his comments. Please understand that he can write whatever he feels; I just have a right to know what is written under the name of my store.

I read 100% of all #1 issues and about 50% of all the comics I purchase and I enjoy some of the small-press stories. I do agree with Cary's statement about Harlan Ellison's Dream Corridor and I would add Batton Lash's Wolff & Byrd along with David Lapham's Stray Bullets and Don Simpson's Bizarre Heroes as comics I suggest my customers read. Incidentally, I am a Christian and a conservative (no party affiliation), but that does not stop me from enjoying good reading.

As far as Marvel, DC, and Image are concerned, with the exception of a few titles, e.g., Spawn, Spectre, Elseworlds, and Wolverine, I am fed up with their super-heroes in super-tights and their constant crossovers.

Therefore, in line with this thinking, my store (with Cary's assistance) will aggressively attempt to persuade the public to give the independent press a look-see. In fact, Cary (at his own expense) is starting a small-press membership club, wherein he gives free comics to a select clientele for their comments. The only stipulation is that they give him an honest opinion (good or bad) about the title.

I recently went back to college to earn a Masters in English and discovered something in the bookstore that I just had to share with you.

I was looking through the English section for the last two textbooks I needed for this semester. As I scanned the shelves, my eyes were drawn to a shocking book cover on which was a sexily posed cowgirl, circa 1950.

But what really drew my eyes to the book was what was written on the cover: Hollyood Uncensored: Sex, Sin, and Violence by Frank Miller. I have enjoyed the Sin City books by Frank Miller, and his letters pages have made me aware of his passionate views on censorship. But I didn't know that he had actually spent the time to research and write a book on the subject.

Then I looked at the inside back cover and saw a photo of the author. I don't know which surprised me more, seeing Frank Miller's name on the book or discovering that another Frank Miller was publicly espousing the same views with apparently the same passion. Who knows? Maybe someday there will be two such books by two different Frank Millers.

On a similar note, I have regretfully decided to stop buying Harlan Ellison's Dream Corridor. Although I have enjoyed it, I was just too offended by his over-the-top ranting at people who favor some or any form of censorship. While I may not favor censorship, as the parent of a 5-year-old boy and as a pastor of an American Baptist church, I appreciate help in protecting people like my son from influences that would be degrading to them if they weren't prepared for them.

My preferred method of doing this, however, is not censorship, since that will only drive the problem underground, but through education. If I found my son writing on the walls with his crayons and responded by slapping him upside the head and yelling, "Knock it off!" it would be effective only as long as the threatened external motivation were present.

But if I take the time to teach him why writing on the walls is bad, he will be internally motivated to stop doing it himself, which is much more effective. Censorship is a slap upside the head.

The television industry is now looking at self-censorship because the causal link between TV violence and real-life violence can no longer be actively ignored, denied, attacked, or misrepresented to the American public. The research is too overwhelming.

One project studied a 30-year tracking of a rural school from 1960 by Leonard Eron, producing the finding that TV viewing at age 8 was an accurate predictor of violent behavior in adolescents and adults. Eton found a 150% increase in conviction for criminal behavior among those who preferred and regularly watched violent TV shows.

Another study was by George Comstock at Syracuse University's Center for Research on Aggression. Comstock concluded that 188 research studies from 1957 to 1990 showed clearly that exposure to violent images is associated with antisocial and aggressive behavior. The 1972 Surgeon General's Report on TV and Behavior cited clear evidence of a causal link between TV violence and aggressive behavior by viewers.

But comics aren't TV. They are more cerebral and interactive. But if the causal link between TV and violence is so well documented, don't you think there must be at least some small connection for comics, as well? I am not talking about the ruination of society, but rather the slow character erosion of an individual who has not learned to read intelligently what is put before him.

The truth is: Violence sells — and most comic-book violence is "happy violence." That is, it is not legitimate for the story. It does not advance the drama or show real pain. It is, rather, a means of problem solving with no serious consequences and sometimes a lot of fun. This is not the message I want my son to receive.

Comic books, like TV and movies, cultivate our perception of the world. That is why we become upset when our heroes are corrupted. That is why Tony Isabella's real-life heroes column received so much positive affirmation. We don't like feeling insecure and threatened by aggression out of control.

But, as I said before, censorship is not the answer. There is a great deal of it already operating, because publishers and editors can reject scripts and stories for almost any reason whatsoever. The answer is not to give a slap upside the head, but rather to teach discriminating viewing and reading. If we would take the responsibility to teach ourselves and our children critical and analytical thinking, we would all be much better off, and so would our entertainment.

[Gee, your last sentence seems to me to be exactly what Harlan has been saying for years. In fact, he has expressed himself in far more negative terms about the influence of television than you are doing.

And Frank has been fighting censorship for years.

For some reason, I'm reminded of more than one experience we had, as our kids were growing up. Parents would say, wistfully, "I don't know why my kids just won't read. Your kids seem to do fine, but mine won't touch a book." Or, "I don't know how you manage to get along so well with your kids. You and they act as though you're real friends."

And we would respond, in the first case, "Find out what your kids think is fun and then find them good, easy books about it to start with. Let them read what they want to read. When they find reading is fun, they'll do it on their own." And, in the second case, "We talk with the kids about whatever they want to discuss. When a topic comes up on a TV show or a commercial that we have strong feelings about, we discuss that, too."

The parents would respond, in the first case, "Well, of course, I would never let them read trashy books or magazines about —" (They would name some topic or other of which they disapproved.) And, in the second case, "Well, if my children ever brought up that topic (naming some topic of which they disapproved), I'd wash out their mouths with soap."

We thought our advice was pretty easy to follow, and I confess we were smug about the results. But those parents would usually conclude that our methods wouldn't work with their kids because our kids were just naturally good.]

I would like to respond to Bob Clinton's letter in CBG #1138's Oh, So? column. I do not concur with his opinions of Legion of Super-Heroes. I absolutely do not find the story tiresome. Nor do I find Legion history distorted. If anything, I find the exact opposite to be true.

I have read Legion since childhood. I have 25-plus years invested in these characters, and I am more than well-acquainted with all the phases of the LSH to date. This current take on the team is by far the best since The Legion's inception and is very true to the original concept of The LSH.

I am one reader of LSH and Legionnaires who is by no means disappointed. Clinton goes on to tell us he will no longer purchase either title at newsstand price but will wait until they are in the discount box. If he is inclined to feel this way, then why bother buying the comics at all, discounted or otherwise?

Zero Hour did bring a much-needed new beginning to The Legion. Ever since the #0 issues of both Legion titles hit the stands last year, the story has risen to new heights, while re-establishing the fundamental history of The Legion. The current creative team not only brought The LSH back to its roots, but sent them in a totally new direction, as well. The creators have surpassed my expectations on all levels and have put LSH and Legionnaires on my must-read list each month.

As for Clinton's gripe about Supergirl-Andromeda-Laurel Gand, I, for one, like her as much as ever. This time around, we do see flaws in Laurel, many nasty ones, at that. Yet we also see repentance for her past, as she denies her upbringing and turns against her own people to stop their genocide.

She even turned herself over to the Science Police to somehow pay for her previous mistakes. With a little more time invested in Laurel, she will be all she once was, and more. To think that the creative team on LSH will let Laurel just rot in prison is yet another misinterpretation by Clinton.

Speaking of misinterpretation, where did Clinton get the idea that Apparition-Phantom Girl was killed so Ultra Boy would join The Legion? What an conclusion to draw from so little information!

Now that some issues have passed, we see Ultra Boy is still no more a Legionnaire than I am. Has Clinton stopped to think the writers might have been trying to depict just how dangerous being a Legionnaire can be? If the comic book is to be believable, there must be consequences to all the characters' actions.

Don't get me wrong. My first reaction to Apparition's death was outrage. I wrote DC, as well. But I also stated in my letter that I cared too much for all The LSH (and how DC portrays them) than to drop the title for this one deed. To me, this would be a childish, shallow action.

As far as Cosmic Boy's being a "hideous example of bad plotting," Mr. Clinton is off-base once again. As to "what prompted this," all you have to do is think out the circumstances Cosmic Boy is going through.

Could it be that the deaths of those under his guidance started to affect him just a little? (Not to mention the President of Earth coming down on him and other Legionnaires' going off in all directions, not listening to his orders). Isn't it feasible that the pressure of his job has caused this extreme change in Cosmic Boy's personality?

I am interested, enticed, and excited over the goings-on in LSH. This current incarnation captures the originality of the Golden Age of The Legion, and I find several similarities between this LSH and that of the '50s. Clinton goes on to claim this isn't a "fun book to read." What are Legionnaires suppose to be doing? Holding hands around a campfire, singing show tunes? The price of $2.25 is well worth dishing out for the quality of work DC is putting out.

Clinton says he's "sorry to lose the 30th century," when it is he who dropped The Legion, not the other way around. So go spend your $4.50 a month elsewhere! Those of us who see a classic in the making will stick around to see The Legion soar to even greater heights.

If Marvel wanted to send us old-time Strange Tales fans mixed signals, it has certainly succeeded. First, it announces that a new Nick Fury series is on its way from that great storyteller Howard Chaykin.

Then, it backed off, changing the ongoing series to a four-part limited series (which was actually a three-issue story arc followed by a fill-in). Of course, now we know why Marvel changed its mind. I doubt very much that what happened to Nick Fury will remain in effect, not with the television licensing deal we read about in CBG.

We get even more mixed signals with Dr. Strange. For more than two years, the writers painstakingly built a story that was to climax with a complete character revamp. The new Doctor was younger and cooler, with Earth-elemental-based sorcery. But that only lasted three issues, and Marvel quickly returned him to a middle-aged mystic.

I get the sense that the editor of the Edge

Capital City Distribution answers retailer questions.

The pace of change in the comics industry has been dizzying this year. Distribution to comic stores has been turned upside down. At Capital, it's been no different - we've been changing too. And we know you've got questions about these changes. So here are the top six questions we've been hearing, and the answers you need.

Why should I order from Capital?

Because Capital has the growth products that can help your store thrive in a declining market - cool products that help make your store the cool place to go. Our exclusive lines lead the way - independent comics and graphic novels from Kitchen Sink and Coppervale, among others; anime videos and manga from Viz; games from TSR, the leader in role-playing games; top-quality prints from 1000 Editions; and more. Capital is also known as having the best line of anime videos and Japanese comics, as the number one distributor in Star Wars and Star Trek merchandise, as a key supplier of games and cards, as the place to get the broadest line of independent comics, and as the place to find the next hot product when the last one is cooling off. If you don't buy from Capital, you're missing your chance at the future.

What are Capital's minimums?

We've lowered our minimum dramatically to make it easier for you to order from Capital in the new world of distribution. Advance monthly orders can be for as little as $350 wholesale, and there's no minimum order per item. Backlist orders through our Reorderlink service can be any size, with free freight over $100 wholesale.

How are Capital's prices better?

At Capital, each retailer gets the maximum discount, whether you buy one product or a ton. In the old world of distribution to comic stories, it made sense for discounts to be based on total order amount. In the new world, forget it - you've got to buy from multiple distributors, so it's harder to build up big orders with any one. At Capital you get the maximum discount for each product no matter how many - or how few - items you buy, whether it's 55% off TSR games, 50% off on Viz or Kitchen Sink Comics, or 50% off on many of the non-exclusive products Capital offers. If you compare, you'll find Capital is the place to improve margins in your store.

Who takes care of me at Capital?

At Capital, each customer is assigned a personal representative that can handle all of your service needs, from placing orders, to questions about shipping, to solving problems, to authorizing returns. All your (domestic) calls are free, and our customer service people know what they're doing and care about you. We know that having a good customer service rep can make the difference between a good day and a bad day for you, and we're committed to making every day with Capital a good day. We've also got a field force of sales reps that visit your store to take care of business face to face.

How does Capital ship?

Our standard service provides two shipments per week. On Tuesday (in most areas of the country, Wednesday in a few), you'll get your exclusive titles and most of your other products via UPS. On Thursday, you'll get your Ronalds products. For those retailers with special needs, we can offer Wednesday a.m. delivery of Ronalds or an additional specialty product shipment on Thursday for a small additional charge (effective December 1).

What about freight charges?

After a lot of consideration, we've come up with a very simple freight charge system - you pay the same low amount every week.

Based on your total advance order for the month in retail dollars(plus net for priced items):

Monthy Order	Weekly Freight Charge
Up to $1000	$10 per week
$1000 to $3499	$20 per week
$3500 to $7499	$25 per week
$7500 to $19,999	$30 per week
Over $20,000	Free freight

For Ronalds delivery by 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, add $10 per week to the base charge. For extra shipment on Thursday, (for a total of three instead of two) add $10 per week to the base charge. These freight charges effective December 1. It's simple, and less expensive.

How is Capital different from other distributors?

One of the big differences between Capital and Heroes World or Diamond is that we're not owned, controlled, or about to be owned by a faceless corporation that tells us what to do. We listen to our customers instead. Place a vote with your dollars for the distributor that cares about retailers first - order from Capital.

How do I get started?

It's easy. Just call our toll-free number and ask for New Accounts (press the #2 key). Our special New Accounts reps will check your retailer status, get you set up with an account number, set you up with your personal customer service representative, and help you get your credit and collections status set. They can also answer any questions you have about how to order form Capital. Remember - we're working for you!

Call Capital today at (800) 546-5467 or (608) 223-2000.

CBG OH, SO?

line is, let's just say it, fickle. Of course, I mean that in a good way. I like the new, old, new Dr. Strange.

These changes might help explain why a plot I recently submitted to Marvel was quickly rejected. I had proposed a cross-over between new Fury and new Strange, who team up in order to combat an entity that is composed of partial life forces stolen from both individuals. The "Doc Fury" story would have given both characters an opportunity to examine their contrasting personal philosophies. Maybe I should have submitted it to What If?

I have been following the letters on Tony Isabella's columns regarding the trend of remaking established comic-book heroes into anti-heroes and, in some cases, downright nihilists. Has it occurred to anyone that this may be attributed to creators pandering to today's youth, with its growing insurgent attitudes? More crimes are being committed today by teen-agers than by adults. This may be because so many teens see their future filled with either unemployment or minimum-wage jobs and little chance to attain the middle-class status of their parents.

Or is this trend a result of the new generation of comic-book creators? Look at the average age of artists and writers at Image and look at the comics they produce. It's all Death-this and Blood-that and set in dystopian futures. Heck, even a character with the wonderful, hope-filled name of Prophet is drawn with savage, blood-squirting glee. I only single out Image as an example and hasten to add that it is giving us some hope with comics like Kurt Busiek's Astro City, Bone, and Wildstar.

As a comics reader, collector, and sometime writer, I have followed the changing market closely through CBG and Comics Retailer. In anticipation of the pending distribution situation, I joined a mail-order subscription service back in March. My first order included comics shipping in June. I paid in advance for my order, which included The Shadow: Hell's Heat Wave #2. (The service runs ads in CBG that say, "No more missed issues due to sell-outs!")

Two months after the original ship date, the service notified me its order was shorted by the publisher. It was forced to allocate those copies they received, and I lost out. While it did issue me a credit, it had six months to earn interest on my advance payment. I have now phoned or visited more than 25 stores in Southern California, but nobody has a copy of #2. Two of the retailers suggested I should have ordered it in advance. (Gr-rrr!)

Perhaps there is a retailer reading this who has the issue and will write me with a price. If issues #1 and #3 are any indication, I think the creative team of Kaluta, Goss, and Gianni have reached a milestone. They have captured the truest Shadow since the original radio and pulp appearances. I'd hate to miss this issue.

Thanks for this great forum and congratulations, Maggie, on your recent award. You deserve it.

I want to tell you something, something that made me feel good about comic books.

A few weeks ago, in the heart of downtown San Francisco, in a small comics and cards shop, I purchased a couple of comic books for the pleasure of reading.

After the transaction was completed, the dealer was very cooperative. He put each comic book in a bag backed with cardboard. I don't really collect modern-age comics, only Silver Age. I politely removed them from the bags, raised them to eye level, folded them, and put them in my inner jacket-pocket.

The dealer's face froze a couple of seconds, then changed to an "Aw, shucks" expression. But his visiting little brother (I think) gasped out loud. I walked out with a smile.

Does anybody out there feel the same way?

Lucky W

THIS IS FIT TO PRINT NUMBER 543: For those who've followed me on the internet and want the latest, here's the alt.lucky.w FAQ.

1) WHAT IS ALT.LUCKY.W?

Alt.lucky.w is a usenet newsgroup devoted to the metaphysics of beneficent synchronicity. It includes catalogues of, experiences with, and rationales for the operation of artifacts, tokens, and devices intended to increase beneficent synchronicity. Such items include coins, rabbit feet, four-leaf clovers, "special" numbers, non-Hitlerian swastikas, white elephants, black cats, wishbones, ace and joker playing cards, crystals, horseshoes, small rocks, rattlesnake rattles, pocket-sized representations of human genitalia, powders of unknown chemical composition, the penis bones of various species of mammals, magnetic sands, amulets, votives, candles, all-seeing eyes, strange attractors, and feathers or leaves that fall from the sky and are caught before they touch the earth.

Cross-posting into and out of alt.lucky.w is strongly discouraged. This faq will be posted to alt.culture.usenet, alt.current-events.blizzard-of-93, alt.sex.hello-kitty, alt.fan.dr-bronner, and alt.fan.ceiling. Those interested in the subject are encouraged to re-post it elsewhere as well.

Offers to buy, sell, and trade artifacts, tokens, and devices intended to increase beneficent synchronicity are permissible in this newsgroup. Commercial spam is not permitted.

2) WHAT IS LUCKY W?

Lucky W speaks to me of Policy Dreambooks; of the Lucky 7 Grocery Store; of childhood Westerns set on ranches known by letter-brands, like the Flying A and the B-Bar-B; of radio station "KDIA Lucky 13" playing R&B out of Oakland, California (and its remarkable, musically unresolved jingle); of "Lucky Luke" cowboy comics (in French); of "Lucky Brown" hair dressing; of fresh fruit from California's Central Valley packed in wooden crates with beautiful figurative labels and "lucky" brand names like "High Hand;" and of all manner of voodoo potions, like "Essence of Bendover" and "Black Cat Rubbing Oil," which i used to buy in Oakland and later in New Orleans.

Here are some of the popular brands in the Lucky W family of products:

LUCKY W WASHING POWDER: "Gets the Blues Out of Your Genes!"

LUCKY W RANCH-PAKT ASPARAGUS TIPS: "Shipped Fresh While U Sleep."

LUCKY W NUMBERS AND POLICY BOOK: "Your Winning Ticket to Dreamland."

LUCKY W RIPE OLIVES: "Send 25 Cents for Italo-American Recipe Booklet #4."

LUCKY W LUBRICANTS: "Good and Greasy."

LUCKY W VALENCIA ORANGES: "Victorville Orange Growers Association, V'Ville, Calif."

LUCKY W CAFÉ: "You'll Love Our Coffee."

LUCKY W RUSSIAN STYLE HOT SWEET MUSTARD WITH HORSERADISH: "Packs a Wallop!"

LUCKY W WEATHERSTRIPPING: "Your Best Protection Against the Unknown."

3) WHAT IS THE OFFICIAL LOGOTYPE OF LUCKY W?

The official logotype of Lucky W is this:

In upper/lower case Rope Script, the word "Lucky," with a four-leaf clover twined into the starting loop of the initial "L."

In a upward (U-shaped) horseshoe, the letter "W" in upper case Stempel Garamond Bold.

4) WHAT IS LUCK?

For the purposes of alt.lucky.w, luck is beneficent synchronicity.

5) WHAT IS W?

W is the 23rd letter of the English alphabet. 23 is a prime number. Fnord.

W is the only letter of the alphabet whose name is described in terms of another letter — and it is at the same time the only letter of the alphabet whose name is a blatant falsehood: it is in fact a "double V," not a "double U."

The use of Stempel Garamond Bold in the official Lucky W logotype is a reminder of the radical contradiction between the form of the letter W and its name: Stempel Garamond Bold is a font in which the upper case W is composed of two separate but overlapping Vs.

6) HOW CAN I GET MY SERVICE PROVIDER TO SUPPLY ME WITH ALT.LUCKY.W?

Alt.lucky.w is available through America Online, Delphi, CCnet, NeoSoft, and other service providers. If your own provider does not carry alt.lucky.w, e-mail a polite letter to the system administrator and ask for it by name.

POV
POINT OF VIEW

BY Mark EVANIER

Long before my time — and, perhaps, yours — there was a thing called radio. I don't mean "radio" like the thing that broadcasts Howard Stern, baseball, Top 40 countdowns, Rush Limbaugh, easy listening, and news. I mean "radio" like the thing that broadcast The Lone Ranger, The Shadow, Amos and Andy, Henry Aldrich, and Duffy's Tavern.

Radio used to feature all of them plus many other wonderful comedy shows and dramas. If you polled radio buffs as to which was the best show ever done, I'd be very surprised if The Jack Benny Program didn't place in the top three. It was one of the top shows for many years and, even today, when you can listen to some of the most popular shows of the day and wonder what anyone liked about them, it holds up. It really was a funny show.

One of the reasons, of course, was Jack Benny, a wonderful man and, as we shall see, a very brave one. Another was his writing staff, widely hailed as the best in radio. And still another was his supporting cast, which included Don Wilson, Dennis Day, Sheldon Leonard, Mel Blanc, Benny Rubin, Phil Harris, Mary Livingstone, and the very funny, gravel-throated Eddie "Rochester" Anderson. All of the supporting players had funny lines on the Benny show. So did the guest stars. Everyone had funny lines on the Benny show except, usually, Benny.

Benny always let everyone else have the joke; his job was to react to them and, usually, be the butt of everyone else's comments. Benny didn't care if he got the laugh or the other guy got the laugh; he knew that if the show was funny, he'd be a hit, even if the audiences did spend most of their time laughing at what Dennis Day or Don Wilson said.

Most comics, past or present, would never have done that. Comedians who are stars of shows — especially if their name is part of the title — have been known to go through scripts, circle every funny line that isn't theirs, and say, "Give those to me or cut them; this is my show." And it does not a lick of good to point to Jack Benny and to note that no comedian was ever more successful.

Of all the wonderful characters who frequented the show — some every week, others now and then — my favorite was Frank Nelson. Nelson's character never had a name and he never had a steady job; he would just pop up wherever the storyline took Jack Benny that week. If the plot called for Jack to go to a department store, Frank Nelson worked in the department store. If the plot called for Jack to get his driver's license renewed, Frank Nelson was the guy behind the counter giving the eye exam. One time, the story had Jack dreaming of being a condemned criminal walking the last mile. The executioner turned out to be — well, you've got the idea by now.

The best part of every Frank Nelson appearance was the "reveal." Benny would approach a clerk whose back was turned. Jack would say, "Excuse me," and the man would whirl around and be revealed as Frank Nelson.

And the audience — this is the Benny TV show I'm talking about now, obviously — would get hysterical in anticipation of what was to come. They were rarely disappointed. On radio, Nelson couldn't spin around and be revealed, so he was, instead, identified by his signature line. He'd say, with a huge, phony smile, "Yesssssssss?" He said it on TV, too. And in movies. And almost anywhere else people hired him.

As an actor, Nelson worked a lot and not just for Benny. Last evening, watching Nick at Nite, I caught him on an old I Love Lucy. The night before, while playing with my TV satellite dish, I caught a few moments on Showtime of what must have been one of his last roles. It was a film called Malibu Bikini Shop, and Nelson — wearing a leisure suit and a dreadful hairpiece — actually managed to steal the scene from a bevy of beauty queens, each wearing a swimsuit crocheted out of a ration of dental floss.

He also used his old radio skills and penchant for overacting to do occasional work in radio commercials and animated cartoons. One of his latter jobs was in one of the prime-time Garfield cartoon specials, back before I began working on the cat. Jim Davis, creator of Garfield, had written and was voice- directing the special and he had included a role for a clerk who was written as a Frank Nelson type. The character first appeared, as Frank always did, intoning, "Yesssssssss?" The casting director, assuming prematurely that the guy who did that bit on radio must be deceased, booked voice actor Hal Smith for the role. (Most folks recall Hal in his role of Otis the Town Drunk on the old Andy Griffith Show, but his main line of work for years was animated cartoon voiceovers.) Hal arrived at the recording session, and Jim explained to him what the role involved, how he'd be imitating that old radio actor, Frank Nelson.

"Why didn't you hire that old radio actor, Frank Nelson?" Smith asked.

"He's dead," Jim said, for that is what he'd been told.

"Gee," Hal said. "That's shocking, especially considering we had lunch together, half an hour ago."

Jim instantly had Hal call Frank and then reapportioned the other roles in the script so that Hal had other parts to play. About a half hour later, an elderly figure shuffled into the studio. Seeing him at a distance arriving, Jim whispered to an associate, "I think I was right." But it was just a joke, because, as it turned out, Frank only looked bad at a distance. Up close — and, more importantly, at the microphone — he was his old self. Everyone was pleased with his performance.

It must have been a few months later that I wrote a CBS Storybreak — an animated special called "The Roquefort Gang," based on a children's book of the same name. The plot called for the title characters (they were mice) to battle a snotty, sarcastic cat. This was a few years before Jim Davis and I got together and I wound up writing the Garfield cartoons for much of a decade.

At the time, my main concern was how to do this fat, snide pussycat character without his coming off as a roadshow Garfield. One key was to think of (and write according to) a different voice. I don't know what made me think of Frank Nelson, but, once I did, everything fell into place and the script wrote effortlessly.

Then came the meeting to plan out the voice casting. Usually, for a special like this, you spend a day at a recording studio, having a number of voice actors read for each of the lead roles. Each actor is recorded reading some audition copy a few times until the director decides the applicant is as good as he's going to get. Then the best "takes" are transferred to audio cassettes and whoever's in charge can listen to them and decide which voice they want for each role. Once this decision is reached, those selected are hired, and everyone goes into a studio and the voice track is recorded, very much like an old radio show, with each actor at a microphone, reading his or her script out loud.

In an office at CBS, the show's producer and I huddled to decide what actors to audition for each role. But when it came to the cat, I said, "The cat is Frank Nelson." (I knew the guy was alive, even if Jim Davis's casting director didn't; I'd even obtained Nelson's agent's phone number.)

The producer started to put Frank Nelson's name on the audition list. I said, "No, no, I want to just give him the role. Let's not make him audition."

"We have to have him audition," the producer said. "What if we get him into the studio and he's wrong for the role?"

"He's not wrong for the role," I said. "Trust me. I wrote it with him in mind."

I even pointed out the cat's first line. It was — you're way ahead of me — "Yesssssss?"

A friendly (sort of) argument followed. The producer argued that, if we hired Nelson without an audition and then didn't like him, it would cost about $1000 to replace him. I said, "Just hire him. I'm sure about this."

The producer wasn't budging, so, finally, I gave in. Frank Nelson was booked to come in and read for the part of the cat. There were seven roles to cast this way, and we set up audition times for around 30 actors to read for them, many actors reading for more than one role.

It was one of the hottest days in Los Angeles history, and, as is usual for auditions, we were running way behind. Still, it was an exciting day: There are dozens of wonderfully talented actors and actresses in Hollywood who do cartoon voices, and we had some of the best coming in to try out.

The producer and I ran the auditions at the recording studio. I'd go out to the lobby, where we usually had a half-dozen auditioners waiting, and call for the next person like a nurse telling someone in the waiting room that the doctor was ready to see them. I'd explain the role to the actors, we'd put them in the booth at the microphone, give them a chance to read the script aloud a few times to "warm up," and then roll tape.

I will never, as long as I live, forget summoning Frank Nelson. He was sitting in the recording studio's lobby, absently paging through a magazine older than he was, surrounded by young actors who didn't know who he was.

I stepped into the lobby and said, "Mr. Nelson?" And he turned towards me — so help me — and went, "Yessssss?" Just like on the Benny show.

I broke into laughter and the other auditioners — the younger actors sitting in chairs around him — suddenly recognized him and they all broke into applause. I have never seen another actor get applause from his peers in the waiting room. I escorted Nelson into the recording studio, explained the role ("Try to sound like Frank Nelson"), and then walked him into the booth and put him in front of the microphone. The producer was sitting in the next room, next to the engineer. As I returned to his side, we could hear Frank Nelson over the speakers, reading the audition script aloud, warming up. We weren't rolling tape yet but, even warming up, it was obvious that Nelson was perfect for the role.

The producer turned to me, sheepish enough to be carved up for lamb chops. "You were right. We shouldn't have wasted his time bringing him in here. Let's just give him the role." (Of course, I was right; that's half the reason I told this anecdote. Do you think I'd be telling you this story if I'd been wrong?) When an actor is in the booth, you talk to them via a microphone set-up called a talkback. I pushed the talkback button and interrupted Nelson's warm-up. He was expecting me to say we were about to roll tape on his reading but, instead, I said, "Mr. Nelson, we're sorry we brought you in here and wasted your time. You're perfect for this role and we want you to play it. We'll be in touch with your agent. Thank you."

Or, at least, that's what I thought I'd said.

A sour look came over him, then he shuffled out of the booth and out of our studio. He sure didn't look like an actor who had just gotten a job. It was about two minutes later that it suddenly hit me: He thinks we dumped him.

Sometimes, a rude director will make a snap decision and cut off an actor, dismissing him without letting him finish the audition. Nelson either hadn't heard me well or I'd misspoken; whatever, he thought we had decided he was so lousy that, although we'd dragged him in here on this 101° day, we weren't even letting him try out.

I sprinted out of the studio, out of the building, and scanned the street up and down. No sign of Frank Nelson. Well, he couldn't have gotten far. I ran around the side of the building to a small parking lot in the rear.

There, just getting into a Chrysler Imperial, I found Nelson and I rushed up to him. "I'm sorry if I didn't make it clear. You have the role. We want to hire you. You are so perfect for this role and so good that we were just embarrassed we asked you to audition."

He smiled and thanked me; he'd assumed exactly what I feared he'd assumed. We chatted for a few minutes and he asked me, confidentially, what his agent could ask for in terms of money. Usually, these specials paid union scale, which most folks consider decent pay for a cartoon voiceover job; few actors ever get more. I remembered the embarrassed look on our producer's face and told Nelson, "Try for double scale. I'll see that you get it." (Well, it wasn't my money.)

Talk of double scale delighted him — not so much for the cash, I'm sure, as the prestige. And he got it.

A week later, our casting selects gathered in the same studio to record the show. We had some terrific voice actors in that session. During a break, the actors got to talking, and Frank mentioned something that is always a sore point with voice actors. "On the way over," he said, "I heard a radio commercial and someone was doing me, imitating my voice. Not very well, I might add."

He did an impression of someone doing a bad Frank Nelson imitation. We all laughed but Frank didn't find the matter funny. Nor would you if you made your living with your voice and someone had just made some money imitating you. "I'm around," he said. "I'm available; they could have called me."

All the other actors nodded in sympathy. "And what burns me," Nelson continued, "is that some actor didn't say no. They asked him to imitate me and he didn't have the professional courtesy to suggest they hire me instead." He told the story about Hal Smith phoning him and said Hal had acted as a pro.

All present agreed with Nelson. But, as he told the story, I noticed one of our other voice actors — a very fine mimic — getting smaller and smaller, quieter and quieter. And I realized why. I wandered over to him and whispered, "What's it worth to you for me not to tell Frank who the actor was in that commercial?"

"I'll bear you a child," he whispered back to me — and I could see he felt awful over what he'd done. That evening, he called me to get Frank Nelson's phone number. He'd decided to call him, confess, apologize and offer to give his fee for the commercial to Frank or the charity of his choice.

He called — and Nelson was very gracious about it, even admiring of the guts it took to own up to the deed. The offer of the fee was declined; Nelson settled instead for a promise that the impressionist would never do it again. As far as I know, the actor never has replicated another voice artist's sound since then.

And even after Nelson passed away a few years later and it might have been OK, the actor declined all bookings to do "a Frank Nelson type." It just made him uncomfortable, he said.

I think it speaks well of him that it did.

Bails' 'Who's Who Volume A' Nears Publication

For more than 50 years, Dr. Jerry Bails has been compiling data on the creators of American comic books and has ended up with a quarter-million listings. Armed with his massive database, Bails began to consider requests from publishers. Greg Theakston, a contributing editor for 25 years, suggested that they join forces in an effort to produce the project using Theakston's system of comic-art restoration to illustrate it.

Bails came to an agreement with Theakston's Pure Imagination Publishing to issue his Who's Who of American Comic Books. Pure Imagination has previously published such comics history books as Pure Images and The Comic Treasury series.

Who's Who includes credit listings and biographical data on every known creator in the comics field from 1933 through 1992. Listings will appear for writers, artists, letterers, colorists, editors, publishers, and even production people who worked in comics. Publishing companies are also covered. Complete title listings show the length of publication, and company logos are also reproduced.

The series, still in its planning stages, is expected to contain from 18 to 20 volumes.

Theakston said, "It's difficult to pin the size of this project down at this time. The raw data will run hundreds of pages and, when you add the illustrations, it could extend to as many as 20 volumes."

The set will be issued a book at a time, with the "A" entry appearing by the end of 1995. Who's Who will be issued in both hard- and softcover, with each book running approximately 164 pages. The hardcover binding for each book in the series will be uniform in size and color. New covers for the softcover editions will be provided by various artists. The first volume features a cover by Jim Steranko.

Ten thousand creators are surveyed in the course of the series, and the information in the listings includes pen names, alternative legal names, and even initials that have been signed to work. All of these are cross-referenced for easy use. Schooling, influences, other family members in the business, birth dates, and other important information help fill in background details, while work listings trace the creator's career. Careers are charted alphabetically by publishing house and titles, as well as the years the work was produced. With more than a quarter-million entries, Jerry Bails' Who's Who of American Comic Books is the most extensive study of comics creators ever produced.

Mighty Oaks and Tiny Acorns

The project was begun in the early 1940s by a youthful comics fan, Jerry Bails. He cataloged his favorite titles in spiral notebooks and began a lifelong study of the medium and its creators. The first incarnation of Who's Who was issued in the late 1960s and became a basic reference tool for comic-art researchers. Although it took four volumes to complete the publication of the information at hand, Bails realized he had only scratched the surface.

Almost seven years after the last copy of his Who's Who was sold, Bails began again in earnest. With the assistance of a computer database, he re-entered his existing data and began to fill in previously missing information. Realizing that this project was far too large in scope for one person, he began to enlist the aid of other enthusiasts, until ultimately more than 60 researchers throughout the world filled out the editorial board.

Seven years later, Bails began to issue the data that he had on hand for inspection by these new editors. Information was added at an accelerated pace, and existing files were combed for errors. Work recently began on the letter "M," and the total print-out (without illustrations) just exceeded the 1000-page mark.

Halfway through the alphabet, his wife suggested that Bails finally begin to issue the completed sections while work continued on the rest of the project.

Helping Hands

The team that helped research Who's Who includes Co-Editors Hames Ware and Jim Vadeboncoeur and an editorial board that includes Henry Steele, Mike Barrier, Paul Leiffer, Raymond Miller, Ron Goulart, Craig Delich, Mark Evanier, Paul Levitz, and Howard Siegel. This core group was supported with efforts from dozens of other researchers worldwide, and each person's specialty strengthened the overall structure of the work. Their dedication is reflected in the quality and detail of the listings.

Bails urges any creators who have worked in the comics field between 1933 and 1992 to contact him, if they have not already done so, for the proper forms. Pure Imagination will also make these forms available at comic-book conventions and through the mail.

Words and Pictures

Eight years ago, Pure Imagination developed a technique of comics restoration that has become known as "Theakstonizing." Taking a full-color comic book, the company extracts the ink from the page, leaving a black-and-white proof of the art. The page is then enlarged and meticulously retouched, removing printing defects and reinstating weak areas of black, producing an example that is superior to the original printed version, with no dot patterns or obscured linework. Thousands of pages are already on file, and thousands more will be converted for Who's Who.

"While we won't be able to match every artist with an illustration, we'll try to provide as many as possible," Theakston said. "Some of the major talents will receive several pages of reproductions, but for the most part we'll be presenting two to six examples of any given artist's work, frequently from several periods in their careers." Some letterers will be represented with examples of their balloon dialogue as well as their display lettering. Writers will be represented by illustrations of their creations by the artist who drew them, allowing artists like Joe Kubert or Curt Swan to be additionally represented in listings other than their own.

Pure Imagination's specialty is comic-art reconstruction, and thousands of pages of comic-book art have been saved using the 'Theakstonizing" process, including Reform School Girls and Teen-Aged Dope-Slaves, Real Love, and various Pogo reprints for Eclipse, Torchy for Innovation, Golden Age material in Buried Treasure for Caliber, the Archie Americana series for Archie Comics, hundreds of pages for DC's Archives and Best of… series, as well as the reissue of Captain America Comics #1-10 for Marvel Comics.

"I've been collecting beat-up comics for years," Theakston said. "Pure Imagination has reprinted work by many of the favorite artists, and I have a huge archive of lesser-known creators. Thousands of pages have been bleached and retouched, and work continues, as poor-condition comics are found.

"It's difficult to get people to part with even the crummiest-condition comics. We're always looking for handouts from fans and dealers. Especially comics that were gotten to by rats and cats!"

Documenting the first six decades of the American comic book

By Jerry Bails
Who's Who Executive Editor*

The readers of today's comics magazines and graphic albums have come to expect that somewhere between the covers of any comic book, a credit line will appear identifying the writers and artists. It is now even the custom to identify letterers and colorists. This was not always the case.

As the collectors of Golden Age comics can tell you, for the first several decades of our beloved pastime, readers had little chance of learning the names of the creators of their favorite features.

With the exception of the names of a few superstars like Will Eisner and Jack Kirby, chances were good that any byline on a strip was a fake house name or merely the copyright holder — a "Walt Disney" or "Walter Lantz."

Even in those few instances where names were real and identified the original creators — names like Jerry Seigel and Joe Shuster or Bob Kane — there was still no guarantee that these individuals had had anything to do with writing or drawing the stories that carried their names. Even the most prolific and talented writers and artists of the Golden Age, like Otto Binder, Paul S. Newman, Reed Crandall, and Carl Barks, were unknown to their reading public.

Many very talented people never once received credit for their work. Even today, the talents of a Pierce Rice (Green Hornet, Spectre, Steel Sterling, etc.) or a Jack Bradbury (Donald Duck, Porky Pig, Bugs Bunny, etc.) are virtually unknown, even to comics collectors. People in the industry themselves were in the dark as to who did what.

By 1953, one out of every three periodicals sold was a comic book, but few knew who really created the stories and pictures. A coverup was in place. It served the purposes of the publishers who wanted to avoid legal hassles over creator rights, and it helped keep freelance payments severely depressed. This policy of anonymity also fed the self-deprecating natures of many freelancers and even staffers, who felt unworthy because they were working on comic books.

For the professional talents who created the four-color fantasies, it was a different world back then. The pros didn't even know that they had loyal fans who would follow their careers for the next half century.

This abominable industry practice of anonymity was only reluctantly abandoned as a result of the relentless pressures from a burgeoning comics fandom.

Beginning in the 1950s and gathering steamroller proportions in the 1960s, the clamor of fans for the names of the creators of their favorite strips finally broke through industry-wide secrecy. The first fan awards, in which writers, artists, and other personnel were acknowledged by name, date from 1961.

While fan-sponsored awards have gone through many incarnations since that time, it is comics fandom that has been largely responsible, through fanzines and, later, conventions, for the recognition and proper remuneration that today's creators receive.

But what of the dark and mysterious period we call "The Golden Age"? Who did what? Can we ever know?

There have always been a few fans, some of whom have finally gone on to become pros, who have been committed to identifying the artists and writers of the Golden Age features. For decades, these compulsive investigators worked in lonely isolation, relying solely on their own skill in identifying styles and uncovering the occasional hidden signatures of artists. Finally, through personal letters, then through fanzines and Amateur Press Associations (notably APA-I), these art sleuths came together to share their discoveries and provide the knowledge base that has made possible a growing number of more reliable books and articles devoted to the Golden Age. Today, a contingent of this group have gone on-line. The Internet buzzes with exchanges on comics forums, and the Grand Comics Database (a computerized index to all comics) is rapidly becoming a reality. The comics sleuths are finally winning out over the Dark Age of Anonymity.

Over the last several decades, a growing number of these dedicated students of comic art (we call ourselves "panelologists") have come together to work on a project designed to provide data on everyone who has contributed to the American comic book. This project is The Who's Who of American Comic Books. A first edition in four volumes appeared more than 20 years ago. Now the database has been completely updated and computerized. It covers the many thousands who have contributed to the production of comic books in America during the first six decades of the industry (1930s-on).

This policy of anonymity also fed the self-deprecating natures of many freelancers and even staffers, who felt unworthy because they were working on comic books.

It is not an elitist compendium or a checklist of individual credits. It provides career résumés for creative, editorial, production, and business personnel. It includes foreign contributors and those contributing through independent publishers. It even attempts to document the most prolific contributors to the vanity press. Naturally, the database covers the careers of new and familiar talents but, what is even more important, it will finally document the careers of the many, many unheralded talents of the Golden Age.

The Who's Who of American Comic Books is now ready to begin publication. The first of many volumes (covering just the As) will appear in print later this year. It will carry thousands of art samples and cover contributions of comic-book people, not just to comics, but to animation, advertising, television, movies, the fine arts, etc. It will also provide the publishing history of every known publisher and list every known pen name. It will be the source for anyone who wants to know who did what, where, and when.

We hope you will enjoy the project and join us to build a lasting monument to those who have given us so much pleasure over the years.

Another rough page from the book contains an example of a contemporary artist's work.

Who was Al Avison?

By Greg Theakston

Thousands of creators created millions of pages of comic-book art that billions of people across the world saw, yet most of these creators remain unknown. Pure Imagination's The Who's Who of American Comic Books will finally give credit to many of those talented individuals, and long-forgotten creators will be rediscovered.

Take Al Avison, for instance. Avison worked in comics for almost 20 years and produced some great artwork during that time. His career began about the time that Superman was created.

Avison lived in the New York City area and was the son of illustrator George Avison. As a teen-ager he attended Pratt Institute in Manhattan with Bob Powell and began to practice for a career in the arts. Avison hung out with Al Gabriele, and the two drew considerable inspiration from the overnight success of two kids from Cleveland, Jerry Seigel and Joe Shuster.

After graduation, the two Als immediately entered the exploding comics industry. Pratt had arranged for positions at Lloyd Jaquet's comic-book shop, Funnies Inc. About the same time that Avison and Gabriele joined Funnies Inc., another newcomer, Joe Simon, joined the scene. Simon quickly distinguished himself as a comics creator to be reckoned with. He was on a winning streak, editing material for four publishers, and the pace was breakneck.

Early in 1940, Avison and Gabriele teamed up with the future kings of comics: Joe Simon and his new partner, Jack Kirby. Simon and Kirby were extremely overworked and needed a support unit to lighten the increasing workload. Al and Al immediately took over finishing Kirby's loose pencils and inking large portions of The Blue Bolt comic strips, as well as providing support work at Timely Publishing.

When Simon was hired by Martin Goodman to take over his comics division, Avison and Gabriele were hired. Al Gabriele recalled, "They set us up in a small office with two tables. It was cramped, but we were having a great time doing comics." They continued to tighten and ink Simon and Kirby's pencils, but this time it was on Captain America and The Vision.

Avison was a star student and quickly picked up the Simon and Kirby approach. As a result, Simon assigned entire features to Avison to pencil.

These included Tuk the Caveboy, Father Time, The Whizzer, and the origin of The Black Marvel in All Winners #1. At the same time, he was working at Harvey doing Captain Freedom (via Simon's connection with Al Harvey) and working on Captain Marvel for Fawcett Editor Ed Herron. Avison had met writer Herron at Timely and, when Fawcett hired Herron to edit in October 1940, Avison was called in to work on "The Big Red Cheese."

When Simon and Kirby left Timely late in 1941, Avison was immediately assigned work on Jack's and Joe's features and continued to do the strips until he was drafted. After the end of the Second World War, Avison returned to Harvey and continued to make it his home for over a decade.

Post-war Harvey was a booming business, and Avison had the run of the place. He worked on a wide range of series, including First Love, Black Cat, Joe Palooka, Little Dot, Casper, and Boy Allies, and held a steady position as The Green Hornet's key artist.

After 1958, Al Avison pursued a career in commercial art and continued to draw until his death in the 1980s.

Believe it or not, this is not an auction. There is no closing date, no minimum bid, no buyer's premium, no bidder number etc. As crazy as it sounds, we have decided to offer these books first come, first served. We know this sounds quite revolutionary, but we have decided not to milk these books for all they are worth by auctioning them off. The fear that there are some collectors out there would have paid $5 or $10 more than the price we are charging is a horror that we will have to live with for the rest of our lives. Please forgive us.

Comics go to the movies

'Mallrats' has work by Allred, Campbell, Lee, Quesada, and others

By Kevin Fitzpatrick
For Bacon and Eggs, Inc.

A project that has the participation of several comics artists in the comics industry is scheduled for release Oct. 20, but it isn't for a comic book. It is Mallrats, a new romantic comedy from Gramercy Pictures.

Written and directed by Kevin Smith, the award-winning director of Clerks, Mallrats follows a comics fan on his quest for more comics and a peaceful day at the mall. He gets neither as a collection of oddballs and misfits get in his way.

Mallrats is a humorous look at the ups and downs of two underachieving guys who lose their girlfriends and go to great lengths to win them back. The pair of friends, T.S. Quint (Jeremy London) and Brodie Bruce (Jason Lee) retreat to their beloved New Jersey mall. There, they must confront the women they love (Shannen Doherty and Claire Forlani), but they will need the help of mischief-makers Jay and Silent Bob (Jason Mewes and Kevin Smith) to pull it off, as well as the sage advice of Stan Lee.

Smith said he needed a dozen pieces of comics art for the opening sequence. After looking at his own comics collection, Smith contacted artists he admired to see if they had time in their schedules to participate. Some, such as Mike Allred and Jae Lee, Smith and producer Scott Mosier met at this year's San Diego Comic-Con and personally invited to participate. It was a comics fan's dreamlist of talent who signed up. The artwork became the core of the Mallrats trading cards series, with six more artists added to an 18-card artist subset.

"It was a good idea, but those artists turned it into a great opening title sequence," Mosier said. "It is the most memorable opening of any movie I've seen all year, and it's all due to the 12 guys who drew the characters. Each one is so right-on and excellent, there isn't a weak one in the bunch."

Mike Allred drew Quint, the relentless romantic. Allred, who said he is a big alternative movie fan, drew a crossover cover that features his character Madman. This will be the first appearance of Madman on the big screen and, hopefully, not the last time moviegoers will see him.

"Allred's piece is the first one I saw come in, and it's just fantastic, one of my favorites," Mosier said.

Jae Lee was given the job of illustrating Shannen Doherty's character, Rene. Lee said he gave Doherty an edgy, take-no-prisoners look. "She is more like an Image Comics character than a TV star," he said.

Other Mallrats artists include Joe Quesada and Jimmy Palmiotti, drawing the characters Jay and Silent Bob. The New York artists said they are both big fans of Clerks, and did the work on the condition that Smith put them in a future movie.

"The Quesada-Palmiotti piece, the more I look at it, the more I love it," Mosier said. "The likeness of Kevin (Silent Bob) is so right on."

J. Scott Campbell and Alex Garner said they jumped at the chance to draw Brodie Bruce, the comics fan who spends more time with his backing boards than his girlfriend. Campbell and Garner are also big movie buffs, and having their work included on screen was cool, they said.

Smith said he was happy that Adam Hughes had the time to produce a piece featuring Gwen Turner. Drawing a gorgeous blonde in a "Gwen^{13}" take wasn't too much of a change for the artist. Hughes said his plate is full now drawing a real Gen^{13} one-shot, but getting the chance to get his name in a movie was too good a job to pass up.

Stan Lee plays a pivotal role in Mallrats, and delivers a soliloquy that all comics fans should pay attention to. Artist Chuck Frazier, who has worked for DC, Marvel, and Milestone, said he is a major fan of "The Man," and added that he did a "star turn" on the piece.

Brian Stelfreeze took on Trish Jones, a sexy teen who also is one of the nutty people hanging out at the mall. Stelfreeze portrayed her in a Barry Windsor-Smith homage, "Weapon Sex."

The two villains in Mallrats, Shannon Hamilton, the store manager from hell, and ultra-mean dad Jared Svenning, were drawn by Kirk Van Wormer and Ethan Van Sciver.

"We showed the 'Hamilton Butman Adventures' piece to Ben Affleck (the actor who plays Hamilton), and he just went nuts," Mosier said. "He said he wants a copy of it. Michael Rooker (Svenning) flipped over his cover, called 'Angry Pop Comics.' In fact, every one of the actors we showed their likeness to said they are awesome."

Mallrats also features a topless fortuneteller named Ivannah (played by Priscilla Barnes), and this illustration job fell to Cully Hamner, who said he has a special love for celebrities. He did a Marvel homage, "The Fantastic Too" with inks by Karl Story.

Jason Pearson contributed a piece that he said will make viewers think of a classic DC series. Titled "Brandi, Last Babe on Earth," he threw in sharks and volcanos to portray Brandi Svenning, the daddy's girl who dumps her

The FFC Collection ~~$35,000~~ $29,000 ➲ ~~35¢~~ 29¢ each

This is the legendary back-room inventory from the Hobart, IN store, birthplace of the Friendly Frank's "empire". Many back issue were bought with long range intentions by Frank and a few others. Dead titles and overstock were assiduously weeded out during this period. ➲ With well over 100,000 pieces, there is enough good material to outfit a chain of stores, or to make a heck of a base operation. The below list was compiled while unloading two big trucks filled with over 360 boxes, and is by no means complete. It is designed to give you an idea of the depth, and variety of the stock. ➲ There are undoubtedly lots of good books not listed.

➲ 80-90% are in one alphabet, and the rest are in two other alphabets (a seven-year-old convention stock, and about-to-be-priced), plus 15-20 or so boxes of recent acquisitions.

➲ COMICS: 29 Alpha Flght 1; 30 Avengers Annual 10; 7 Batman Year One; 22 Dark Knight 2 (1st); 7 Black Dragon 1; 14 Black Orchid 1; 50 Classics Illustrated (12¢, 15¢ers); 42 Contest of Champions 1 (50 2; 10 3); 20 DCCPresents 26; over 700 Miller Daredevil (10 #159); 29 Elektra Assassin 1; Firestorm 61 (test); 50 McFarlane Hulk; 5 Iron Fist 1; 10 (Pacific) Groo 2; 300 Kitty & Wolverine; 13 Legion 287; 10 Longshot 1; 50 Machine Man 1; 5-6 Marvel Fanfare 1-2; 6 Marvel Team Up 53 (10 54), 30 New Mutants 1 (50 #2, 1 #83, 15 Special Edition); Omega 1 (1st Faust); 20 Pacific Presents 1; 6 Powerman 57; 20 Punisher War Zone 7; 10 Realm 4; 50 Ronin; 4 Sandman 1; 250 Secret Wars I; 75 Sgt. Fury; 15 Shadow 1 (1973) 40 1('86); Showcase 33; Silver Surfer 3; 10 Spider-Man 200, many 202-203, 20 #252; Taboo, Tapping the Vein, Tales of Suspense, Tales to Astonsish, Gold Key Tarzan and Twilight Zone, 15 Teen Titans 1; 30 Thor 337; Warlock 5 (1st series); 5 Warlord 1 (1st); 15 Web of Spider-Man 1; 20 What If 27 (50 #35); 150 Wolverine 4 (Miller); 100 X-Force 1; over 3000 X-Men, and seven boxes of Adult including over 100 50¢ cover comix.

➲ ART/PRINTS/PORTFOLIOS: Original art includes a Gil Kane Hawk & Dove page, [illegible] Steranko co[illegible] self-portrait (rare), 2 color Ke[illegible]n Eastman Catwoman pieces, 15-20 Larry Welz [illegible] drawings, 30-[illegible] Question pages, Cow[illegible] Detective pages; 20 B&W Mr. X pages (incl[illegible] one from #1), 2[illegible] pages, and at [illegible] or so other assorted pages. A French Watchmen Portfolio, 30-40 other portfolios, a stack of 75-100 assorted posters and prints.

Price Reduced SOLD!

➲ CARDS: About 30 sets including the 1st Marvel series, Star Wars Galaxy II, Giger's Tarot; Vertigo; Fleer Ultra X-Men; Flair Chromium; over 1000 Magic cards (including lots of good ones I'm told); about 10,000 other singles; some adult; and a few boxes. Uncut sheets include 3 Youngblood Prism, 10 Savage Dragon Prism, and Wolverine Prism.

➲ OTHER (non-comic sized) stuff includes 25 Blazing Combat 2-4; 20 Carl Barks Library; 25 Capt. Britain; 400 Creepy; 50 Epic and Eerie; 80 pre-#50 Famous Monsters; most Hot Rod from '56-'73; 75 1984/94; Raw #1; 5 Savage Sword 1; 100 Starlog; 9 TMNT 1 (2nd), 10 3 (1st); 3 boxes of Adult material including 125 graphic novels; Capt. America & Wolverine Statues; a Little Lulu Library; a dozen or two first issue pin-up mags from the '30s to '50s; 100 Disneyland Magazines (complete?); two boxes of old paperbacks; 4 Watchmen Scripts, a Dr. Strange Script; 3 ltd ed R.E. Howard books; 50 Treasury Editions, 35 Japanese Anime mags; over 100 non-adult graphic novels; two rolls of '40s or '50s Superman wallpaper (supposedly worth a lot), 3 metal signs, etc, etc.

➲ A conservative estimate of retail value is $300,000 to $400,000. If it takes three hours to alphabetize a box of comics, and another hour to file it into the main alphabet, just the alpha-numeric order (at $7/hour) is worth another $8400.

Basic Inventory $2800

*We set this aside from our regular inventory when buying out a store about a year ago, because we thought it would make a good stand-alone store stock. Overall, the 9000 comics (and 100 magazines) are in nice shape–most everything is bagged and virtually anything from the last few years is in nm/m condition. Another nice thing about this batch, is that there are a decent assortment of older books–no keys or golden age–but more than a handful of 12-25¢ books. ➲ Retail over $18,000.

More than 80% of the books are in exact alphanumerical order. Specific older books include Amazing Spiderman #75, Batman #176, Capt America #102, early Eternal Warrior, Excalibur #1, Flash #150, 164, 166, Gold Key Lost in Space, Marvel Premiere #3, OMAC 1-8, Warlock [illegible]0¢), early Peter Parker, [illegible] Web of Spider-Man, Wo[illegible] 130, and good [illegible]ties of X-Men #304 and X-Force #2. There are also 9000 cards, categorized by set, which are also in order. The owner said these were really good sellers at 10¢/card and up. They form the basis of a good business in non-sport singles (you can trade commons on a 10 to one basis).

SOLD

If we figured the 9000 books and mags at $2/each that would be a total of $18,000. Add on the cards, and some better books (plus a few shirts, PVCs, and POGs) and we're looking at about $20,000 retail value. This is probably a low estimate, but we're being conservative. Based on the price we are asking, you can sell the best 20% at full price, recoup all your investment, and have the ability to sell the rest at a 80% discount and still more than double your money. This scenario doesn't take into account trading advantages.

Advanced Inventory ➲ $7000

➲127 Long white boxes and 14 Mag boxes. Just the first section of highlights below comes to more than $10,000! Some boxes are loose and have less than 300 books (though some have more). Figure 275 books/box on average we'd have 34,925 books, plus 14 mag boxes, for a total of 35-36,000 pieces. We want to move this fast, so the price is $7000! (or 20¢/book). Everything is in alpha-numerical order.

Get the maximum discount, whether you buy one or a ton.

In the old world of distribution to comic stores, it made sense for discounts to be based on total order amount. In the new world, forget it. At Capital City Distribution, you get the maximum discount for each product no matter how many - or how few - items you buy.

You'll get the maximum discount on every product, whether it's 55% off on TSR games, or 50% off on Kitchen Sink or Viz Comics or 50% off on many of the non-exclusive products Capital offers.

Why? Because Capital is the distributor that cares about retailers. We know you have to buy from more than one distributor now, so you can't rack up a big order with any single one, even if you want to. So instead of penalizing you like other distributors, we're helping you.

Maximum discount is our way of saying "we're in this together". To place an order call (800) 546-5467 or (608) 223-2000, or fax us at (800) 546-5488.

What's 'Mallrats' about?

By Kevin Fitzpatrick
For Bacon and Eggs Inc.

Two heartsick guys won't admit it, but the relief they seek from the angst of getting dumped by their girlfriends in the morning is a trip to the mall in the afternoon. This is the premise of Mallrats, scheduled to open Oct. 20. They don't have to save the galaxy. There is no mystery to solve. Don't look for a big race, climatic fight sequence, time travel, horses, car chases, gunfire, or any explosions. In Mallrats, the adventure focuses on reunions, comics, mischief, wry insights, and plenty of comedy from start to finish.

The hero is Brodie Bruce, a comics and video-game fan. He has the blues over Rene, his girlfriend, who, sick of being third in his life — after comics and video-games — has given him the boot.

Brodie makes his weekly trip to Comic Toast, the comics shop at the mall, to pick up his comics on reserve. At the mall Brodie and his pal, T.S. Quint, meet a group of oddballs who, just like them, have no shopping agenda.

Comics fans have never had a movie like this to hold up as their own. Brodie is the "Every Fan," the fanboy who doesn't want to admit that he is one: the guy obsessed about super-hero anatomy and high scores on video-games. Other movies may have had comics references (True Romance, Crimson Tide), but did they have:

... a group of oddballs who ... have no shopping agenda.

"Things happen in real life, but the whole thing is still believable."

- Anybody bag and board a comic book in it?
- A bedroom jammed with comics and sporting an Alex Ross poster?
- Shannen Doherty shouting about chromium covers and cross-overs?
- A soliloquy on love and comics by the most recognizable face and name in comicdom, Stan Lee himself?

The film's writer and director Kevin Smith said, "If I've done my job correctly, audiences are going to be taken back to the late '70s and early '80s, with movies like Animal House and Caddyshack and some of the early John Hughes movies. The comedies of that time were really much different from anything else. They were irreverent.

"I think Mallrats has the same kind of hyper-reality quality: Things happen in real life, but the whole thing is still believable."

boyfriend and winds up as a game-show contestant.

Dave Johnson drew Willam, the hulk of a guy who takes up a lot of the screen. One of the funniest guys in the movie, Johnson said it was a blast to get a piece of his artwork in movie theaters.

More artwork was commissioned for the card series. These pieces include work by Tom Taggart, Molly Kiely, S.M. Taggart, Ingar Westberg, and Mosier.

Bacon and Eggs Inc. will release the Mallrats trading card series, a 90-card set. There are 72 movie photo cards and 18 artist cards. Each card back is devoted to an inside look at the film from concept to production with text and interviews with the film's director, producer, and actors.

HOBBY GAME DISTRIBUTORS

More Games. More Profits.

Some comic distributors would like you to think that the game industry consists of only 300 game items. At Hobby Game Distributors we have more than 8,500 game-related products on hand now. Eighteen years of experience has taught us that while a shop might choose to stock less than 300 games, choosing from only 300 games is not much of a choice. Imagine a comic store stocking only "X" titles and advertising a "wide selection." Our salespeople--with more than 40 years combined experience in game distribution--are experts at helping you put together a game section that will maximize your profits. Additionally, we carry comics and comic-related product from over 30 publishers. At Hobby Game we want to see you get more, not less.

TONY'S TIPS!
BY TONY ISABELLA
Staton

Kelly Rose, my just-turned-4-year-old daughter, doesn't completely grasp what it is that her daddy does. I've had editors with much the same difficulty, so this isn't exactly a novel experience for me. Fortunately, there is still hope for Kelly.

Kelly does know that my office is where Dad does whatever it is that he does.

She knows this because it's also where she gets paper for her artistic endeavors. She is going through a destructionist/constructionist period in her art, which basically involves cutting paper into odd shapes and taping the pieces into even odder configurations.

What the heck. She enjoys herself and I ship the results to a trendy gallery in New York City, where, properly framed, they've been selling for about six grand apiece. It has become all too clear to me why DC and Marvel have their editorial offices in Manhattan and the terrible psychological price they must pay as a result. Poor sods.

Kelly and I went to the post office the other day to pick up Tony's Tips mail. The envelope with the bright orange CBG logo caught her attention, and I explained that it came from one of the magazines for which I write. She's seen me wearing my CBG shirts often enough to recognize the logo.

Inside the envelope was a note from CBG Publisher and Former Judge Ito Impersonator Greg Loescher. Greg was going through his stuff from the San Diego convention and had come across something that he was supposed to have given me at the con. It was a photo of Tips reader and professional clown Kevin Starr, wearing full clown regalia and smiling warmly.

Kelly took one look at the picture of "Starr the Clown" and, eyes wide with excitement, asked me:

"Is that your boss?"

OK, let's see how many notes and reviews I can get through while I still have a column.

• Several months back — "several" being defined as "What? Look through all those old columns for an exact date? Yeah, right!" — I praised Tim Markin's Breakneck Blvd. Since then, the title has moved from Motion Comics to Slave Labor Graphics but remains one of the freshest new comics on the scene.

Here's the set-up: Fed up with family problems and his job, Frank Dunkard heads for the most extreme diversion that a citizen of his Midwestern September City can seek, the bar-and-club-lined street known as "Breakneck Boulevard." Within hours, he picks up some new friends and a new name, Urban Angst.

That's the short form. For more of the story, check out the first Slave Labor issue with its reader-friendly summary of "what you may have missed" on the inside front cover. This first issue shipped in July; the second is due any week now.

(Bonus etiquette tip. When you purchase Breakneck Blvd., be sure to compliment your local comics retailer on being hip enough to have ordered this title. He or she will feel good about the variety he or she is offering to his or her customers and be encouraged to expand it further. Everybody wins.)

• Josue Menjivar sent me Broken Fender #1-4, a haunting series of black-and-white mini-comics. The stories within are about any number of subjects — coffee, love, travel — but share a unique and sometimes surreal sensibility. They won't appeal to every comics reader, but, on the basis of some unforgettable images — such as a woman changing the course of her life while drinking coffee in an empty diner — I think they are worth a look.

Broken Fender #1-4 are available for $2 postpaid from: Josue Menjivar, c/o Fresh Brewed Illustration, 1408-B Rabb Rd., Austin, TX 78704. A fifth issue is planned for January.

• The Collected Strangers in Paradise Volume 1 by Terry Moore (Abstract Studios, $6.95) is in its third printing. When I first read these compelling stories, I wrote, "I was bowled over by this new talent." Since that initial review, Moore has regularly reduced me to a toppling nine-pin with each new look at the lives of Francine and Katchoo, not to mention the intriguing supporting characters whose paths cross those of his heroines.

You'll find drama, mystery, poetry, romance, and even action in The Collected Strangers in Paradise — and an overpowering urge to read the (so far) seven issues that have followed. My advice? Surrender to that urge; you'll be glad you did.

• The format is unwieldy. Each Paradox Mystery requires three digest-sized issues of 96 pages at a price of $4.95 each to relate its story. The expense and, well, inconvenience, of the format is why I haven't previously recommended any of the series. Until now.

Is it Starr the Clown or ...?

Family Man by Jerome Charyn and Joe Staton takes us one hour into the future of a New York City where the streets are ruled by rogue cops and vicious street gangs, and what's left of the Mafia hide fearfully in their shabby tenement hideouts. It's a killer book by the author of such previous graphic novel triumphs as The Magician's Wife, Billy Budd, and KGB and brought to riveting life by Staton's extraordinary artistry.

Despite its ungraceful format, Family Man is still worth its aggregate $14.95 price tag. Still, I think it could have reached a wider audience if it hadn't been trapped in the body of an off-size comic book. It deserved to do just that.

• I have no such quibble with Howard Cruse's Stuck Rubber Baby (Paradox Fiction, $24.95), which will certainly and deservedly be compared to all the usual outstanding graphic novel suspects, once the word-of-mouth network gets to work. Let me tell you a little about it while I hit the thesaurus for synonyms for "amazing" and "masterpiece."

Set in the South during the '60s, Stuck Rubber Baby relates the captivating story of Toland Polk's coming of age in that turbulent time. Polk is a reluctant soldier on two battlefronts. On one, he is drawn by his sense of decency into the civil rights movement of the period. On the other, he struggles to understand his own sexual identity. It's a profoundly human tale, told with uncompromising dignity and unflinching honesty.

Make some room on that shelf where you keep Art Spiegleman's Maus, Scott McCloud's Understanding Comics, and the works of Will Eisner. That's where Stuck Rubber Baby belongs.

(Bonus promotion tip for DC Comics. Start thinking of Stuck Rubber Baby in the same sentence with "Pulitzer Prize winner" and approve an advertising budget commensurate with that distinction. This is your shot. Take it.)

• Looking for something lighter? While I don't imagine it will be nominated for a Pulitzer any time soon, I got a real kick out of Kevin Gould's Super-Hero Little Instruction Book flipbook. As you might expect, the other side of this fanzine is the Super-Villain Little Instruction Book.

The super-hero half of this zine, credited to "Stu Parr" and written as a gift to his daughter, The Material Girl, offers such common sense advice as: "When testing for flying abilities, pick a nice, soft wheat field,"and, "Learn to speak in simple, declarative sentences." That's smart thinking, chum.

On the super-villain side, Evil McNasty offers less-virtuous counsel to his accountant son: "Never steal anything too large to hide in your abandoned warehouse," and, "A scowl is just a smile upside down."

You can get a copy of this flipzine by sending $2.50 plus $1 (for postage and handling) to Kevin Gould, 10248 Regal Oaks, Apt. D, Dallas, TX 75230.

• Several months back — see above — in an answer to one of those bogus (yet always hilarious) letters I occasionally sneak into my "Medina Mailbag" offerings, I wrote this: "Aqua-Jimmy was reading an article about Rush Limbaugh's political views, which, as you know, don't hold water." Biting satire, it wasn't.

However, it did attract the ire of Steven R. Thomas, who subsequently wrote that he found my comment to be insulting. I think we should all be proud of this CBG reader. Because, by realizing that the comment was intended to be insulting to Big Rush, Steven has taken a giant evolutionary step from "completely clueless" to "mostly clueless."

In this spirit of hope, I want to recommend a recent book to Thomas, to other struggling dittoheads, and to the loved ones who stand by them in their time of mental tribulation, a truly spiffy book called The Way Things Aren't (The New Press, $6.95), written for FAIR by Steven Rendall, Jim Naureckas, and Jeff Cohen.

FAIR (Fairness and Accuracy in Reporting), founded in 1986, is both an independent media watch group and a non-profit educational organization. For this book, it collected "over 100 outrageously false and foolish statements" from Rush Limbaugh, that malevolent master of broadcast deceit.

The Way Things Aren't documents several dozen Limbaugh lies. It's Limbaugh versus reality, and the smart money is on the truth, especially when Limbaugh contradicts, not just the facts, but even his own previous statements. I love this book.

I also don't expect it to remove the scales from the eyes of those who have embraced Limbaugh as their spokesman. It's become all too easy for them to blame their worldly woes on easy targets selected for them by this cruel commentator. After all, the only alternative would be to take responsibility for their own actions or lack thereof.

Rush. Say it loud enough and it sounds like the air pouring out of a rapidly deflating blimp. It makes me wish I didn't have to teach my Kelly the difference between a smile and a sneer — or that some clowns are dangerous.

The Way Things Aren't. I recommend it highly.

Tony Isabella, America's most beloved comic-book writer and columnist, can't wait to see the letters he gets on this one. If you have a comment, a question, or a review item, you can send it to: Tony's Tips, P.O. Box 1502, Medina, OH 44258.

Warning: Anything you send is considered fair game for this column. If you can't stand behind what you write, keep your lips zipped, your pen on the desk, and your fingers off your keyboard.

This is the land of the free and the home of the brave; you can't have one without the other.

Sex 'found' in 'The Lion King'

By Jim Neal

Sex?

In a Disney movie?

That's what a Virginia organization is claiming for The Lion King.

Forget the sea-shell bra worn by Ariel in The Little Mermaid. Ignore the fact that Disney transformed the leading character in Pocahontas from a 12-year-old girl to a ripe young lady looking for romance. Snub that suggestive song "He's a Tramp," sung so sexily by Peggy Lee in Lady and the Tramp.

This one is real sex.

Or so says the American Life League, based in Stafford, Va., according to a Newport News Daily Press story distributed by the Associated Press.

The problem is that you have to look closely to see the sex message.

It happens, says the League, when Simba, the hero of the story, is clowning around with his buddies Pumbaa and Timon. Laughing, he walks to the edge of a cliff and plops down in the dust.

And the dust! That's where the problem is, it's said.

The cloud of dust Simba raises puffs out and — well off to the left — the cloud forms the word: S-E-X.

Oh. To see it, however, you have to be standing back a little from the screen. And maybe tilt your head to the left.

And it doesn't last any time at all. In fact, one of the letters fades out before the other two are completely formed, says the Daily News.

The American Life League, identified as a conservative Christian group, wants a public apology.

"What we'd really like," said Tracey Casale of the League, "is for Disney to remove the movies [from video stores] and edit them."

Disney studio officials have made no comment about the matter.

A Minor Variation

By Kim Yale

During my senior year at Knox College in Galesburg, Ill., I was on the student board film committee. This meant I helped pick out what films would be shown each semester, wrangle over budgets, and occasionally end up in constitutional debates about freedom of expression. (I voted to show Deep Throat, but the elected officials of the student board caved in to pressure from the town's district attorney who threatened to seize the film and, at the last minute, substituted and screened a wretched print of Sam Peckinpah's Straw Dogs. Go figure.)

The final term was always tricky in terms of funds, but there was one movie we had reserved for the end of the school year — Monty Python's And Now for Something Completely Different.

It was 1976 and my entire school was gaga over the Pythons. You could go from one end of the campus to the other on Sunday evening and find the televisions in each suite, frat, sorority, and co-op turned to WTTW, the Chicago PBS station running the British comedy series.

My other major duty was to introduce each movie and remind the students not to drink, eat, or smoke during the film. I thought it'd be appropriate that each time And Now for Something Completely Different was shown, the announcements should be in keeping with the spirit of Monty Python's Flying Circus.

At the first showing, a group of "Gumbies" showed up to help me make my announcements in their own inimitable fashion. The second showing, the Spanish Inquisition showed up, minus the nifty red robes but hell-bent on tying me to a pool cue rack. The third viewing was early Sunday evening and I couldn't find any cohorts to help me.

It was two weeks before the school year ended, and conscience-stricken students were locked in mortal combat with neglected papers, projects, and experiments. I was trying to figure out how I could possibly incorporate elements of the "Déjà Vu" episode into a solo schtick, when my good friend Donna Brady mischievously made a suggestion. "Why don't you flash them?"

Now, I owned a magnificent robe in the style of a full-length smoking jacket that a male admirer had given to me as a present. It was the perfect garment in which to bare myself to the elements, as it were. And there were flashers in Monty Python — Terry Jones had done a couple of riffs on it and Terry Gilliam had had an animated woman flasher who tended to flit in and out of the scenery.

I enlisted the aid of Judy (regrettably, her last name escapes me), one of my great senior-year buddies who owed me a favor from when I stalked through her human anatomy class dressed as a vampire, dripping fangs and all. She was more than happy to be my co-conspirator.

I arrived at the auditorium where the film was being shown and told the projectionist what I was going to do as a professional courtesy.

As luck would have it, the projectionist that night happened to be the president of the film committee. I think she thought I had either lost my marbles or was trying to deliberately embarrass her and the student board. She insisted on scanning the audience to see whether or not there was anyone who might take umbrage. She found the college psychiatrist, one of the deans, and a boy around 12 years old — all sitting together. I was strongly advised to reconsider my practical joke.

I did.

I decided to go through with it.

A few minutes before the film was scheduled to start, I changed into my robe and tossed my clothes to Judy, who took up her position backstage to wait for me. I remember the murmurs of puzzlement and curiosity, as I marched down the right aisle to the stage. I felt the attention and energy shift to me, as I mounted the stairs and faced the audience. Audience members didn't have the foggiest idea why I was dressed the way I was, and I took their uncertainty and used it.

I started to make my usual announcement prohibiting smoking, drinking, and eating in Kresge Hall in what I hoped was my best John Cleese impersonation, when someone yelled out the phrase I'd been bombarded with throughout the year, usually by drunken and/or stoned frat boys.

"Take it off!"

I couldn't have asked for a better cue.

"Well, now that you mention it …"

I untied the robe and slipped my hands into the two capacious front pockets. The gown was hanging loose and free, but all was still concealed. The murmurs had risen to a hubbub of disbelief and skepticism. I took a deep breath and, as I exhaled, I stepped outside of myself and detached from my surroundings. I heard the words coming out of my mouth in what I still hoped was my best John Cleese impersonation: "And now for something completely different."

I opened the dressing gown with my hands in my pockets, flashed the audience, shut the robe, wheeled around, and, with great pomp and majesty, exited the stage, leaving behind me a stunned, silent audience.

Right behind the stage door was Judy with my clothes and an open can of Coors beer. The sense of serene calm dissipated the moment I shut the door, and my body started trembling from a shot of adrenalin. I half-stumbled, half-fell into Judy's arms, as she thrust the Coors at me, grinning like the Cheshire Cat.

I guzzled down some beer, as we started to laugh and giggle insanely. Through the stage door we heard a male voice scream, "I don't believe she did it!"

This was immediately followed by tumultuous applause, screams, catcalls, whistling, and foot-stomping that carried on through the first minute or so of "How Not To Be Seen," the opening sketch of And Now for Something Completely Different. I managed to get dressed and headed back to my dorm room, whooping and crowing in triumph all the way with Judy.

The next day I found out: the head of the film committee thought I was trying to deliberately embarrass her and the student board, and I was kicked off the committee (I was reinstated); the dean and the school shrink had had a bet going between them whether or not I'd flash (I never found out who won the bet or how much it was for); the boy turned out to be the shrink's son; and the majority of fraternities on campus spend a goodly amount of time discussing the virtues of my physique.

A good friend of mine gladly told me the consensus of his Greek brothers: great breasts. (Well, they used a slang term, but this is a family paper.)

Nineteen years later I am wearing another robe, but it is nothing like my elegant smoking gown, which I still own after all these years. It is a hospital robe, white with blue piping, wrinkled, thin, and nubby. I am lying in Recovery, and the oxygen tube inserted in my nostril is annoying.

A thought surfaces from beneath the murky depths of anesthesia: It's not really a good thing for your brain to inhale pure oxygen. Where did I learn that? Can't remember. I gently remove the tube from my nose and push the bloody thing as far up into my hairline as I can. I then discover one of the side effects of breathing pure oxygen: hiccups.

I get the worst hiccuping jag I've had in years, I try to flag someone's attention, but I'm not successful. Finally a nurse hears me, turns and informs me not to worry; having the hiccups is a side effect of breathing pure oxygen.

That's easy for you to say, I think, as the hiccups increase in frequency and severity.

Another nurse materializes by my bedside, checks my pulse, and asks me if I want some juice to drink. I pick cranberry. The hiccups stop with my first swallow. Nestled in the crook of my right arm is one of my teddy bears, a special anniversary edition of Winnie the Pooh by Gund.

Somewhere close by is the other talisman I brought with me this day — a Scott Bakula button. I peek underneath my robe. I can see the swath of gauze and tape covering the top half of my left breast. The nurse who brought me the cranberry juice removes the IV imbedded in my right wrist and helps me to my feet. I lean on her arm, as I walk, shaky on my pins, toward a chair in Recovery, where my husband is waiting for me and we will both wait for the news.

I do not have a Jim Balent breast.

I do not have a John Byrne breast.

I do not have a Patrick Blaine breast.

I do not have a Jae Lee breast.

I do not have a Dan Fraga breast.

I do not have a Bill Tucci breast.

I do not have a Michael Turner breast.

I do not have a Jim Lee breast.

I do not have a Rob Liefeld breast.

I do not have a Todd McFarlane breast.

I do not have a Marc Silvestri breast.

I do not have a Bart Sears breast.

I do not have a Greg Capullo breast.

I do not have a Mike Deodato breast.

I do not have a Jim Valentino breast.

I do not have a Steven Hughes breast.

I have a Kimberly Yale breast that has been diagnosed with a malignant tumor.

I have breast cancer.

On Oct. 16, my entire left breast will be surgically removed.

The only breast I want is mine.

"Detached Thoughts on Books and Reading"
Charles Lamb (1833)

• The Big Book of Conspiracies (1995, DC/Paradox, black and white, $12.95, ISBN 1-56389-186-7) is written by Doug Moench and drawn — like the other Big Books — by an assembly of artists (39 of them, in this case).

I've raved happily about the Paradox line in general and the Big Books, in particular. (Those others are BBs of Urban Legends, Weirdos, and Death.) My favorite remains the one on urban myths, in part because they are specifically, deliberately fiction. And they're good, compelling fiction in that they have stood the test of the folk tale; they are well-constructed enough to compel retelling.

What I don't like about the conspiracies book is the flip side: It promotes wild stories concerning events that really did happen. Some of those stories may be true; some are cooked up by kooks. They are all given the same treatment, and accuracy is blown off with such cover copy as "You'll learn all the answers — even the ones that contradict each other" and "We don't create 'em, we just relate 'em." And it keeps bothering me that these are discussions of real people and real events mashed together with malicious lies and serious speculation like spaghetti and meatballs.

Spaghetti and meatballs can be tasty, it's true, and this is — within its framework — well-written and well-drawn. And it should attract lots of buyers (and maybe the most media attention of the series to date).

But I still like the urban myths book best.

• Considering that Topps' Return to Jurassic Park #5 (Aug 95, $2.95) is a new series based on the film — and has to cope with the existence of a sequel by Michael Crichton and has to tell ongoing stories — this is nicely done. There's a "what has gone before" passage to fit readers into the story comfortably, and this starts a new story arc, "Heirs to the Thunder" by Tom and Mary Bierbaum. (It's pencilled by Armando Gil and inked by Fred Carillo and Steve Montano.) Two researchers discover one of the scientists is up to something, and there's nice interplay between people and dinosaurs. I am not taken with the back-up feature (though I like the idea of back-up features): "Roadkill" by Michael White. Maybe it will progress more rapidly in the second installment. If not, it'd have been more fun to have a longer installment of "Heirs."

• From Hell #8 is Chapter 11 in "a melodrama in 16 parts" (July 95, Mad Love/Kitchen Sink, black and white, $4.95, ISBN 0-87816-360-3) written by Alan Moore and drawn by Eddie Campbell (with art assistance by Pete Mullins).

This is an ongoing, adult, scholarly graphic work about Jack the Ripper — and writer and artist have researched the matter extensively. (In fact, the issue — like others — contains Moore's discussion of what is being shown and why, giving sources and elaborating the background in fascinating detail.) If you're a Ripper buff, a mystery aficionado, a comic-book fan, or a student of graphic storytelling, you should be buying this series. (This one begins with the finding of Marie Kelly's body.)

• Asay Doodles Goes to Town by Chuck Asay (1995, Pelican, ISBN 1-56554-142-1) was sent by kindly Irv Jacobs. Unfortunately, I don't find a price anywhere, but you could try writing Pelican at 1101 Monroe St., Gretna, LA 70053. OK, I'm pretty liberal — especially by today's standards — so take my review as coming from that standpoint. I agree with maybe 5% or 10% of what Asay has to say. (Comments on the back of the book include Phyllis Schlafly's, "Chuck Asay is right on the mark with his quick wit and political insight.") That said, I add that this collection contains outstanding presentations of a conservative viewpoint. They're concise, funny, and memorable; I would argue with most — which is fine. That's what the art of editorial cartoons is: simplifying a complex issue into a one-punch pictorial comment.

INVESTOR - GRADE SILVER - AGE!

The Nostalgia Merchant is proud to offer an outstanding selection of Silver Age Books. Almost all of these books have beautiful, high-gloss covers. Some have minor defects that reduce the grading and price. The Collector of these books went to great lengths to buy beautiful copies.

PLEASE READ: 100% 7-day money back guarantee on the A.F. $15. Certified Funds Only! You can deduct up to $20.00 from price for cost of certified check.

* AMAZING FANTASY #15: A nice, flat, clean copy. Professionally appraised as a VG/FN would be a solid fine, if not for spine wear that keeps it out of the fine category. STRENGTHS: No chips, tears, rich cover color, OWL 8 pages. No major creases, no spine roll, cover tight and attached. WEAKNESSES: Significant wear to this book is confined to spine. ¼" spine chip, 1⁄16" tear on spine. Reading crease along spine. Transverse spine creases along staples. Light ⅛" crease top, bottom corners of cover. Make no mistake. This is a very acceptable copy. Listing the defects sounds worse than it is. You need to see this book. Any old-time dealer would price this book at 35% of near mint. Our price is 23% of a near mint value of $22,000.00!! .....$4,950.00 or best closest offer!!

COMICS™
& EMMA DAVENPORT
BY GINA AND RICHIE PROSCH
THERE SURE ARE A LOT OF GOOD INDEPENDENT BOOKS OUT THESE DAYS...
SOLO COMIX
YOU BET! BUT THERE'S ONE TREND THAT'S REALLY BUGGING ME...
SOLO COMIX NO 1
I MEAN, IT'S ONE THING IF THERE'S A REASON FOR IT...IF IT WORKS WITH THE ARTISTIC STATEMENT YOU'RE TRYING TO MAKE...
IT JUST SEEMS SO ARBITRARY I GUESS...

"But it really bugs me when I'm reading a comic, and all of a sudden, the creator for some unknown reason lays in a block of text," said Emma.

"Maybe they think it makes the work more accessible to the general public," said Lyle. "After all, prose without pictures is what most folks are used to." Emma shook her head.

"I really don't think that's it. I just think it's trendy to plop down a big old chunk of prose in your comic book these days."

"Your'e being cynical, Emma," said Lyle. "That's really not like you. Though I'll admit with prose there's the tendency to get a little preachy. A little long winded, a little--"

"Okay, okay. I get your point."

"I see what you mean," said Lyle.

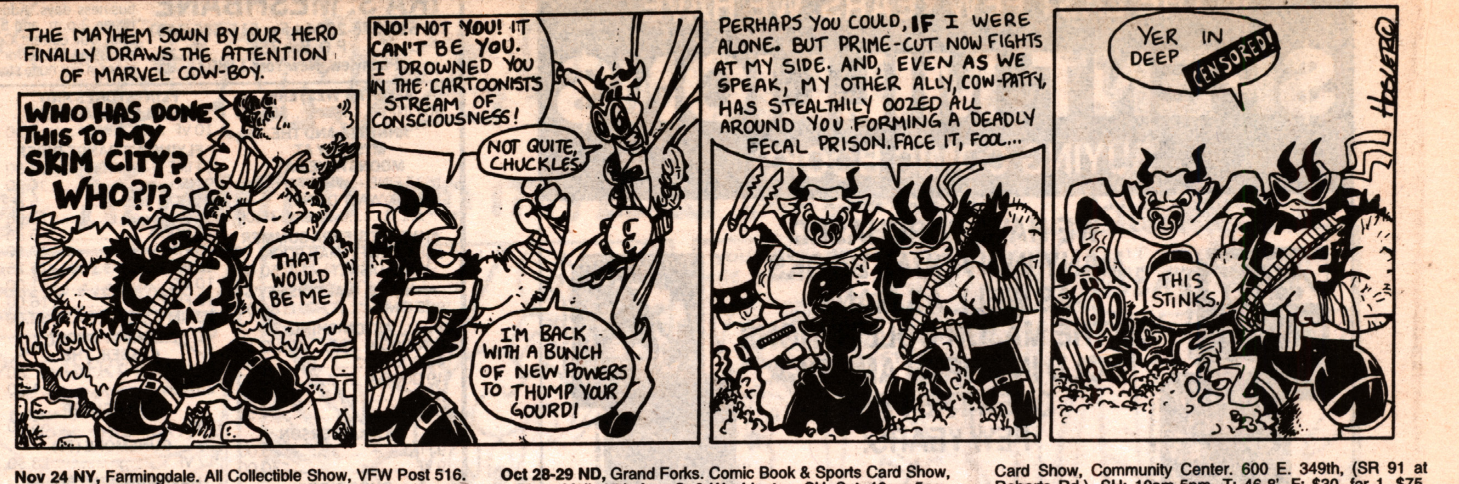
Cow-Boy By Jay Hosler



THE MAYHEM SOWN BY OUR HERO FINALLY DRAWS THE ATTENTION OF MARVEL COW-BOY.
WHO HAS DONE THIS TO MY SKIM CITY? WHO?!?
THAT WOULD BE ME
NO! NOT YOU! IT CAN'T BE YOU. I DROWNED YOU IN THE CARTOONIST'S STREAM OF CONSCIOUSNESS!
NOT QUITE, CHUCKLES.
I'M BACK WITH A BUNCH OF NEW POWERS TO THUMP YOUR GOURD!
PERHAPS YOU COULD, IF I WERE ALONE. BUT PRIME-CUT NOW FIGHTS AT MY SIDE. AND, EVEN AS WE SPEAK, MY OTHER ALLY, COW-PATTY, HAS STEALTHILY OOZED ALL AROUND YOU FORMING A DEADLY FECAL PRISON. FACE IT, FOOL...
YER IN DEEP CENSORED!
THIS STINKS.

Calendar Notes

• Shows listed are multiple-day, non-mall-show events with the primary focus on comic books. Further information about these and other shows, as well as creator appearances, can be found each week in the CBG features What, Where, and When and Now Appearing.

• Diamond Comic Distributors' Fall Flings are open to retailers only, held at Diamond Distribution Centers from Oct. 26 to Nov. 6. Diamond and publisher representatives will be available to answer retailers' questions and talk about future plans. Retailers interested in attending should RSVP to their local Distribution Centers by Oct. 20 — local centers can also provide more information about dates and activities at specific locations.

• The Lancaster Literature Festival's Comics: The Gathering Day is a special project which seeks to expand the audience for and understanding of the medium of comics through such activities as holding workshops in local schoools and bring comics creators into classrooms.

Activities scheduled for the festival include discussions about adapting classics into comics with Hunt Emerson and Knockabout Publishers Tony and Carol Bennett; a performance of a Philip Marlowe detective story, The Pencil, featuring a jazz accompaniment by Geoff Hearn and visuals by David Lloyd; a comic-strip jam session; and appearances by Bryan Talbot, Charlie Adlard, and others.

For information, contact the Lancaster Literature Festival (Comics Project) at 67 Church St., Frepost (LA1 278), Lancaster LA1 1BR, England.

• The Minneapolis folk duo Flash Girls is touring Washington, Oregon, and northern California October 19-31. Confirmed dates are listed in the calendar; check local listings for other appearances. The Flash Girls are fantasy/s-f author Emma Bull and The Fabulous Lorraine.

• The Guardian Angel Tour: 8-11 p.m. Oct 31 at The Palace of Fine Arts, San Francisco, CA. Dave Sim hosts. Neil Gaiman will read from his books Angels and Visitations and Snow Glass Apples, as well as other stories; Paul Mavrides will speak about his case against the California Board of Equalization; music by Flash Girls. Proceeds benefit the Comic Book Legal Defense Fund.

Tickets are available at Bay Area comic-book shops or contact BASS (510) 762-2277. Highlights will be broadcast on KFJC radio, 89.7 FM, Los Altos Hills, CA, Nov. 10 and 17.

• Vincent Fago worked on early animation projects including Betty Boop, Popeye, and one of the first (pre-Disney) feature-length works, Hoppity Goes to Town (also known as Mr. Bug Goes to Town). Fago, who was also an editor at Marvel Comics in the 1940s, will make a rare appearance at the Northampton Film Festival in Northampton, Mass., to talk about the wild early days of animation. There will also be a screening of Hoppity. Information: (413) 586-3471.

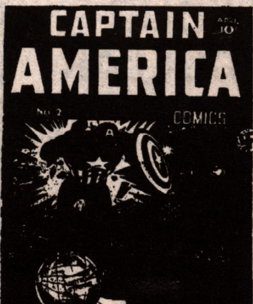
Captain America #2
❀❀❀Auction❀❀❀



Available to the highest bidder is a very nice copy of Captain America #2. This book features a great cover depicting Cap, Bucky, Hitler, and a host of Nazi bad guys.
Front cover inside and out is very clean with square corners (very slight rounding at spine). Colors are excellent with no fading. There is no tape or writing anywhere on the book. Front cover is very flat, Fine. Spine is solid. Midway between staples there is a 3/16" tear through spine which is not very noticeable. 1/8" spine tear directly above bottom staple. Minor fraying in 3 spots.
Back cover has some soiling although colors are excellent, very flat, one 1/4" tear seal--Very Good. Interior pages are very light tan and supple. Centerfold loose and split half of total length. All pages are split to bottom staple. Some pages have minor chip near lower right hand edge. Interior--Very Good.
A very collectible copy with average interior for a Timely but above average cover. Bidding closes Wednesday, November 8th. Trades considered. Ask for Brian Peets.

BUY COMICS TRADER ADS

AND GET THE MOST SPACE FOR YOUR ADVERTISING DOLLAR!

Remember, the better looking and easier to read your Comics Trader ad is, the more business you will do. Here are some tips on making your ad the most effective.

- Do not use small letters. Each 8½" X 8½" sheet is reduced down to fit a single Comics Trader Box. If you use small letters before reduction, the copy may be illegible after.
- Do not FAX your Comics Trader ads. The ad copy becomes distorted and appears blotchy when printed.
- Use clean white paper, clean typewriter keys and a dark ribbon.
- Include ordering information, postage rates, name, address and telephone numbers. This leaves no questions unanswered and avoids delay.
- NEW ADVERTISERS: Must supply CBG with your current street address and phone number to avoid delay. If you choose not to list your phone number in your ad, you must provide CBG with your current phone number.

COMICS TRADER:

This is an area reserved for the advertiser who wants no-frills advertising with a price to match. $36.00 buys one of the 12 equal spaces on a Comics Trader page. These spaces can be bought in any multiple of the $36.00 unit (maximum 6 units per page). We'll reduce the ad and handle all the production - just design your ad on an 8½ x 8½ space and send it with payment. Remember to keep your design simple so your ad will be readable when reduced.

Super Traders should be typed on an 8½" x 11" sheet of paper which will be reduced to fit a ¼ page space. Each Super Trader costs $102.00 - limit 2 Super Traders per page.

COLLECTOR'S SHOWCASE:

This cost-efficient format in COMIC BUYER'S GUIDE offers you typeset space at a discount. Collector's Showcase units are approximately business card size. You may buy as many units as you want for an ad at cost of $25.00 per box. All typesetting, photos, art, borders and logos are done by Krause Publications and are included in the price.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY:

One column ads, 1-3 inches in length, must appear in the classified section. They may be placed under the various classified headings. This gives you the advantage of targeting the collectors you want to reach while standing out among the smaller word ads in classified. Rates and sizes are as follows:

Miscellaneous thoughts:

There's a "public service" ad presently running in local theaters which features Julia Louis-Dreyfus talking about film preservation. It starts off with her watching a clip from The Odd Couple (the film, not the TV series). And then she explains how we are in danger of losing our film heritage.

We are told that movies, unless they are specially preserved, are deteriorating, even as we're sitting in the theater. Time is ticking.

What I want to see is remakes for the '90s that suit the styles of particular directors or producers.

And what occurred to me was that, yes, this was a tragic thing. Movies falling apart, the celluloid self-destructing.

On the other hand —

It also meant that, throughout the country, in every state throughout this great land of ours —

— prints of Showgirls are decaying, as well. And, with any luck, Punisher and Captain America have crumbled to dust by now.

See? You can find a bright side in anything.

I was not the least bit surprised when O.J. Simpson pulled out of the TV interview. I never saw the point of it in the first place. Those who are convinced he did it assume he's a liar and won't believe his claims. So he won't change any minds on that score. He could, however, say something stupid and end up changing the minds of those who had believed he was falsely accused. It's a lose-lose situation. No upside to speak of.

In any event, people keep speculating about the questions they would have liked to ask him. (Like, "So have you bought new gloves?") But me, I'm fascinated by the polls that indicate all those people who state categorically that they believe O.J. was framed.

I'd like to ask them questions, questions such as:

- Do you believe Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone?
- Do you believe the Kennedys had Marilyn Monroe assassinated?
- Do you believe Elvis is still alive?
- Do you believe in reincarnation?
- — UFOs?
- — the Loch Ness Monster?
- Do you believe the statistically insignificant Nielsen ratings remotely reflect the viewing habits of this country?
- Do you believe Clinton has a prayer in 1996?
- Do you believe a Joe Eszterhas script — any Joe Eszterhas script — is worth $1.5 million?
- Do you believe that there would be a circumstance under which you'd go on a national talk show and talk about your most personal problems?
- Do you believe Marvel will never open up retail outlets?
- Do you believe everything you read in supermarket tabloids?

I'd be curious to see the number of "yes" answers that overlap. After all, people don't exist in a vacuum, and what they believe in other matters would be indicative to me of just how seriously I should take their other opinions.

One other thing, and then I'll cheerfully leave this dead horse to be flogged by others.

People have been comparing the O.J. trial to that of Lizzie Borden. Immortalized in a poem about doing her parents in, it was popularly believed that she had slain them with an axe. But she was found Not Guilty.

So, to be fair, I unleash the following doggerel:

O.J. Simpson took a knife,
Whacked a waiter, whacked his wife.
When they saw what he had done,
They blamed it all on Mark Fuhrman.

I saw trailers for this hot new movie starring Demi Moore, so pulse-poundingly photgraphed that I thought it was for that new film of hers about strippers. Imagine my shock when I saw it was The Scarlet Letter, that immortal classic which put me to sleep in high school. (The endless "Customs House" chapter alone is enough to send one screaming from American Lit class.)

And, coming soon, Harrison Ford starring in the remake of Sabrina. With other remakes on the way, I'm sure.

What I want to see is remakes for the '90s that suit the styles of particular directors or producers. For example:

• 'Boat. A remake of Showboat. A Joel Silver production directed by Richard Donner. Imagine, if you will, the tension. A bomb has been planted aboard a turn-of-the-century Mississippi paddlewheeler by a demented ex-choreographer (Dennis Hopper). If the ship goes slower than five nautical miles an hour, the thing explodes. The anxiety builds, as desperate lawman Sam Clemens (Keanu Reeves) commandeers a rowboat and frantically rows his way in front of the ship, holding up a sign that says, "Bomb on Boat."

Upon realizing the predicament, Cap'n Andy (Ronny Cox) has a heart attack, and it's up to Noli (Sandra Bullock) to keep the 'boat going, while Sam tries to think of a way out of their predicament.

A generational saga spanning the course of 20 years, 'Boat's soundtrack would feature a song by Hole, Hootie and the Blowfish, and Snoop Doggie Dog's rendition of "Old Man River."

• Casablanca. A Paul Verhoven film. Script by Joe Eszterhas (paid $3 million for a script written on toilet paper during a bout with the trots). American ex-patriot Rick Blaine (Arnold Schwarzenegger) runs a combination strip joint and brothel in Casablanca. His carefully cultivated air of ennui is shattered when his old lover, Ilsa (Sharon Stone), comes to town, seeking passage to America.

But there's a twist, for Ilsa is not alone. She's accompanied by her lesbian lover, freedom fighter Victoria Lazlo (Julie Andrews).

Will Ilsa remain with Rick? Will Rick try and reawaken the heterosexual relationship they left behind? Will Captain Renault (Gerard Depardieu) be a friend or an ally? — a question that can also be asked of rival club owner Signor Ferrari (Marlon Brando). And meantime Major Strasser (Rutger Hauer) is closing in.

Featuring major action sequences, as Rick takes out entire Nazi divisions with his bare hands. At the same time, Ilsa is pressed into service at Club Rick's to earn her exit visa, sending Rick, Ilsa, and Victoria into a dizzy downward spiral of sexual exploration and depravity.

Sample dialogue: Rick: Of all the strip joints in all the towns in all the world, she has to come in mine.

• Wizard of Oz: A Quentin Tarantino film.

Open with the Emerald City. A young girl and her companions die in a hail of gunfire.

Cut to downtrodden street kid Dorothy Gale (Uma Thurman), while preparing to shoot up in an alleyway in Los Angeles, trips and falls. The hypo buries itself in her chest, and she collapses on the filthy ground.

Cut to a good witch (Bette Midler) who travels around on a silver surfboard and an evil witch (Amanda Plummer) who kill each other in an explosive hail of gunfire.

Cut to Dorothy, sent into a bizarre drug-induced dream (inspired by a measurement line on the hypo tube that reads "oz") in which she finds herself in a bizarre land called Oz. She discovers the corpses of two witches but has no idea what happened. Dorothy is on her own and has to travel to seek help from the Wizard of Oz (Quentin Tarantino). On the way she teams up with a hitman who has no brain (John Travolta), a hitman who has no heart (Samuel L. Jackson), and a hitman who has no bravery (Bruce Willis). They arrive at the gates of the Emerald City and are machine-gunned to death.

Cut to an alleyway, where Dorothy's corpse is looted by a passing bum (Harvey Keitel) who exposes himself and slinks away.

• North by Northwest directed by Brian DePalma. Tom Hanks instead of Cary Grant. Otherwise identical to the original.

• Schindler's List written and directed by Mel Brooks.

Sure, it's recent.

So was Star Wars when Brooks produced Spaceballs and Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves when he did Robin Hood: Men in Tights. Retitled Schindler's Lisp, the movie has Brooks in a double role as Hitler and as Schindler. Schindler is portrayed as a flaming lisping homosexual, with many hilarious results. Anne Bancroft plays his frustrated wife, with Dom DeLuise as the corpulent Nazi Commander who is amused by Schindler's mincing.

Early word on the concentration camp sequence is that it's Brooks at his best. Fearful Jews forced to play Concentration, overseen by Alex Trebeck as himself, while singing Nazis form a kickline and perform "Springtime for Schindler."

Sample lyric from the opening song, performed by Mel Brooks:

He's making a list.
Wow, wotta guy!
Gonna decide who'll
Live and who'll die.
Oskar Schindler's coming to town.

Promo poster: Brooks as Hitler, thumbing his nose and saying, "So? How's by Jew?"

Boy …

It's moments like this I think I've got way too much time on my hands.

Peter David, writer of stuff, can be written to at To Be Continued Inc., P.O. Box 239, Bayport, NY 11705. And the above doesn't even include The Agony and the Ecstasy featuring Art Adams as Michelangelo taking forever to finish the Sistine Chapel ceiling.

WE'VE MADE COMICS FUN AGAIN

NUMBER 3

A VIEW from THE TOP

At Gladstone, we believe comic books are an art form which provides entertainment, escape from everyday troubles and, perhaps, a comment or two on the reality of the human condition.

We believe comic books should be produced for all ages. Adults should enjoy them on one level while children are …

At Gladstone, we believe Walt Disney's Comics and Stories 601 fulfills all this and more.

Are we right? We'll all find out together November 21.

We believe. We think you will, too.

Jim Flanagan

Celebrating GLADSTONE'S 10 ANNIVERSARY

They say, "Time flies when you're having fun." Well, we must be having a blast, because August marked our tenth year and it almost caught us by surprise!

But, not unaware. The party really started in Walt Disney's Comics and Stories 599, commemorating the 55th anniversary of Disney's flagship title. Then, issue 600 (on sale next month) features a special tribute to Donald Duck 10 pages. And, the celebration will reach its zenith in November with WDC&S 601 as we introduce a new era in Disney comics!

We've come a long way since Uncle Scrooge Goes to Disneyland in 1985, and this issue of the Gazette looks back on where we've been and ahead to where we're going. So, come on! The party's just starting!

THE ULTIMATE DISNEY COMIC

Whenever Disney fans get together, … inevitably asks … somebody … somebody …

… the demand of the most discriminating Disney collector. Each bi-monthly issue

"Quote Unquote" Walt Disney

Too many people grow up.
That's the real trouble with the world,
too many people grow up.
They forget. They don't remember what it's like to be 12 years old.

More Fun.
